IN THE BEE TO-DAY

WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau.
Toledo, March 8.

The local forecast for to-day is: Light rains, colder to-night. For Wednesday, clearing, colder, with probably a little snow in the forenoon.

The barometer depression north of Lake Superior Monday developed into a storm and moved southward with unusual rapidity until its center was over Knoxville, Tenn., with a pressure of 29.4 inches. Its influence is felt from northern Canada to Florida. The entire country excepting the southwest is under storm influence, and the clearing condition even there is accompanied by a pressure of only 29.9 inches—a "high" only by contrast. The weather presents no immediate redeeming feature unless we rely on the pressure rising in the southwest; if it does rise, clearing weather may be expected, otherwise cloudy and threatening weather will prevail for several days longer. The temperature is lower in the lower Mississippi valley and warmer in all other districts, especially in Montana, where it is 50 degrees above. The lowest temperature reported was 26 degrees at Sault Ste Marie. The lowest reached in Toledo was 33 degrees.

Total rainfall in past 24 hours was .35 of an inch.

Charles Wall Executed at Tunkhannock.

Brief History of One of the Most Cold Blooded and Heartless Crimes Ever Committed in Pennsylvania.

Tunkhannock, Pa., March 8.—Charles Wall, who was executed here to-day murdered his wife Julia with an ax on July 25, 1891. They lived in Center-Moreland township, and had only been married two months.

Wall was jealous and quarreled with his wife, alleging undue intimacy on her part with Butler Wall, his nephew. Wall went to town, and his wife, not expecting him home, went to a neighbor's to pass the night. Wall returned during the night intoxicated, and not finding his wife, smashed all the furniture and dishes in the house.

He then went to the house of John Smith, where his wife was in bed with her sister, and attempted to cut her throat with a knife, but only succeeded in wounding her slightly.

Mrs. Wall then went home. Wall soon followed, securing an axe on the way. Mrs. Wall saw him coming, and fearing he would do her harm, ran out of the house and started to cross a lot. She had only gone a short distance when she fell and Wall, who was following her, ran up and drove the axe into her head. He struck her the second time and left her lying dead.

Wall was arrested and confessed his crime. When he came up for trial on November 9, he entered a plea of not guilty on account of insanity. He was convicted, however, and sentenced to be hanged.

DOINGS IN DEFIANCE.

Interesting Divorce Case and Marriage.

A Missing Defiance Man Supposed to be Dead—Big Blaze—General Mention.

Defiance, O., March 8.—(Special)—In response to a telegram from the coroner of Hancock county, Jacob Killian left for Findlay to-day for the purpose of identifying a dead body found there, supposed to be that of his brother, Frank Killian.

Frank Killian is 28 years old, a resident of this city, and left last Saturday, not telling any of his friends where he was going.

The divorce case of Anna M. Crout vs. Israel Crout has attracted more than usual attention during this term of court. In her petition Mrs. Crout alleges cruelty and a failure to provide. The divorce was granted, she to pay the cost.

A new phase of the case here presented itself. An old man, gray by the lapse of years, named Phillip Luxumberger, who had been noticed in the court room all through the trial, here stepped forward, drew out his wallet from his pocket, and paid all the costs that had been assessed against Anna. They then left the court room, went direct to the probate office, secured a marriage license and a few minutes later were made one by Justice Orcutt. They then left for their home of future bliss near Bryan.

A fire occurred at Evansport, nine miles north of this city, yesterday. A large barn belonging to W. C. Snyder, containing four horses, seven cattle and twenty head of sheep, seven hundred bushels of corn, all his agricultural implements, besides other grain, were completely destroyed.

There is nothing new in the tramp shooting affair, except that the other tramp, O'Neal, was released yesterday and left town, after positively refusing to give evidence in the case. Coroner Westrick hopes to dispose of the case in a day or two.

ALGER IS IN THE FIELD.

He Wants to Run for the Presidency.

He Makes a Plain Statement of His Intentions and Then Hustles Out After Votes.

Detroit, March 8.—Gen. Russell A. Alger will leave for California soon to attend the annual meeting of the Fort Bragg Redmond company. A reporter asked him, "Will you say, before leaving, general, something as to your attitude toward the suggestions of your name for the republican presidential nominations?"

"I have until recently," said he, "been undecided as to whether I would enter the contest, but in view of the expressions which have come to me from earnest republicans throughout the country, I have concluded to enter the field.

"You may say this for me, for the information of my friends, both at home and abroad."

UNEARTHING THE CRIMES.

Auditor Lavelle Was Short $18,463.

Investigation Into the Accounts of the Man Who Burned the Court House.

Washington, Ind., March 8.—The experts employed to investigate the books of the county auditor's office have at last finished their task and find ex-Auditor James Lavelle $18,463 short.

A part of this, $2,850, Lavelle's old mother has made good.

The shortage consists in illegal allowances and gigantic frauds, one of which was a bogus bridge contract.

Lavelle is now under indictment for burning the court house last November, just after the experts had been employed.

WOMEN FAINTED AND MEN FLED.

A "Crank" Breaks Up a Church Meeting in Anderson, Ind.

Anderson, Ind., March 8.—"I am the king and everyone of you must pay tribute to me," shouted a "crank" as he entered East Lynn church, one of the most fashionable congregations in the city, and strode up the main aisle brandishing a six-shooter and a butcher knife.

The preacher's prayer was cut short, women screamed and fainted, and some of the men jumped out of windows.

Six men overpowered the maniac and took him to jail. He proved to be Henry J. Lawrence, a well-to-do farmer, whose mind had been unbalanced by the grip and by the desertion of his wife.

DID SHE SWALLOW THE BALLOON

The Toy Collapsed in Annie's Mouth Just Before She Fell and Died.

New York, March 8.—While playing in the street yesterday afternoon Annie Dalamater, 12 years old, of No. 70 Henry street, fell unconscious and died almost instantly.

Dr. Hayward said he could not tell the cause of death. A playmate said that a rubber toy balloon had collapsed in Annie's mouth just before she fell. The physician thought she might have drawn it into her windpipe, but could find no trace of it.

THE COHN BROTHERS.

They Came to Their Death In An Attempt To Burn Their Property.

St. Louis, March 8.—Last night the coroner's jury investigating the death of the brothers, Abraham and Mark B. Cohn, who died last Friday from the effects of burns received during a fire at their place of business, No. 2744 Choteau avenue, returned a verdict to the effect that deceased come to their death while attempting to destroy, by fire, their store and contents.

SCENES OF EXCITEMENT

At the Home of the Scottish Astronomer.

Prof. Copeland's Residence Burned and His Family Narrowly Escape Injury.

London, March 8.—The destruction by fire last night of the official residence of Professor Copeland, the Scottish astronomer, was attended by thrilling scenes.

The residence is in the fashionable quarter of Edinburgh and is a favorite resort for the wits and scientists of the modern Athens.

The professor and his family were sleeping soundly when aroused by the cry of fire. The inmates at the time were Professor Copeland, Mrs. Copeland, and their three children, Miss Phillips, a visitor, and several servants.

The flames, the origin of which has not yet been discovered, were gaining such rapid headway that the family had no chance to escape by the stairs, and sheets and blankets were twisted into use as ropes to enable them to descend to the ground which, fortunately, was not a great distance.

The children were dropped into the arms of a sturdy fireman, who received them safely amid the cheers of the crowd that gathered to the scene. Professor Copeland remained to the last, assisting his family's exit, and then descended himself.

The firemen worked with the greatest energy, apart from the saving of human life, for the library of Prof. Copeland, which is the property of the nation, is priceless in its value on astronomical subjects. The library was saved, and the fire extinguished without the complete destruction of the mansion.

THE BUSINESS IS OVERDONE

English Vessel Property is Not Paying.

The Associated Chamber of Commerce in London Discusses the Question.

London, March 8.—At the meeting today of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, the address of the president attributed the decline of British trade in 1891 largely to the political and commercial situation in South America.

He believed that the present receptive capacity of the world's market had been reached by the supply and the immense increase in British mercantile shipping raised an outlook far from pleasing.

He feared that the increase would outrun the powers of the employment for the capital invested and that it was likely that the shipping would have to wait a long time for satisfactory profits.

The address made a decided impression and its sentiments were received with general approval by the representatives of business men in all parts of England.

TED PRITCHARD.

He Is Ready to Fight Fitzsimmons on Either Side.

New York, March 8.—A cable dispatch received at the Police Gazette office yesterday from London says that Pritchard, in answer to Fitzsimmons' challenge, says he is willing to box Fitzsimmons in either England or America for the middle-weight championship of the world within ten weeks from signing articles and that he will bet 2,000 pounds on the result.

The match between Pritchard and O'Brien is off, as the latter refuses to box anywhere but in the national club.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT.

The Famous Hotchkiss Suit is Ended.

The Lawyers Will Get No Chance to Grow Fat Over the Twelve Million Estate.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 8.—The famous Hotchkiss suit, which has been in the courts for the past half dozen years, has been settled out of court.

The fact was not made known until yesterday. The suit grew out of the settlement of the $12,000,000 estate of the late Benjamin Berkeley Hotchkiss, the inventor of the well known gun of that name, who died in Paris in 1885.

The plaintiffs in the suit were Charles A. Hotchkiss and his wife, Anna M. Hotchkiss, of this city, and the defendants were Frederick A. Hotchkiss, of Sharon, Conn., and Dwight Hotchkiss and Botra A. McKelvey, of this city.

Last night to a reporter Charles A. Hotchkiss refused to state the terms of the settlement. He said the offer of settlement came from the defendants, and that he was perfectly satisfied. It is certain that a large portion of the great estate was given up by the other side.

A TRAGEDY IN MAINE

Which it Took Twenty-Seven Years to Solve.

Death-Bed Confession of Geo. Thayer

Shows That He Murdered His Brother, Took All of His Money and Married the Dead Man's Fiance.

Bath, Me., March 8.—Twenty-seven years ago this month a young man named William R. Thayer was found dead at the roadside near the little north Pennsylvania lumbering village of Seftonville.

There was a bullet hole in his temple and a pistol in his hand. Young Thayer, who was a well-to-do lumberman, was engaged to be married to a Miss James, the daughter of a leading citizen of Seftonville, and why he should have committed suicide was something so singular and unaccountable that many of his fellow townsmen scouted the idea of suicide and declared their belief that he had been murdered.

He had a brother, two years his senior, who had recently come to the village to live, and his brother was strong in the expression of the belief that his relative had been assassinated, and for weeks put forth evident strenuous efforts to discover and bring the murderer to justice. Nothing was developed, however, that gave any clue to the perpetrator of the crime.

The brother, George Thayer, was the only relative the dead man had, and as the latter died without a will George came into possession of his property, which amounted to $12,000.

The business was continued by George, who, two years later, married the young woman William Thayer was engaged to. She has been dead ten years, and the five children she bore her husband all died in infancy. The first week in January last Thayer, who had lived almost entirely alone since the death of his wife, fell sick. He was ill only a week when he died. The night before he died he summoned Sheldon James, his brother-in-law, and the latter was alone with the sick man for a long time.

What passed between the two James did not reveal to any one until one day last week, when, unable, as he declared he was, to bear the burden of the secret longer, he made public the fact that George Thayer on his deathbed had confessed that he was himself the murderer of his brother William.

They had never been friends, he said, and an old quarrel, based on a great injury the brother had done him a few years before, was renewed soon after George Thayer came to Seftonville and on the fatal night they had met and during high words that followed he shot William dead.

The strangest part of the patricide's confession was that while he feared the exposure of his crime he had never felt regret for it. His provocation, he said, was so great that it justified his act. What the provocation was he did not make know...

HE WILL HAVE TO LET GO.

Springer's Condition Worse Than Generally Known.

He Will Not be Able to Preside Over the Ways and Means Committee Again This Season.

New York, March 8.—A Washington special to the Press says Mr. Springer's important chairmanship of the ways and means committee is practically at an end.

Dr. Vincent said yesterday that even should his patient begin to rally at once and continue to improve from this time on it would be impossible for him to attend to any business for the next two months.

Dr. Vincent declares that under the most favorable circumstances Mr. Springer could not leave his house within the next three weeks.

After that the doctor will insist that Mr. Springer go to Fortress Monroe for a stay of four or five weeks.

According to this program, therefore, Mr. Springer has practically concluded his services as chairman of the ways and means committee for this session of congress, for tariff bills will be entirely disposed of by the end of April.

KINAHAN IS DEAD.

The Maker of Irish Whisky Has Departed.

He Was a Descendant From an Old Cork Family and Highly Respected in Ireland.

London, March 8.—Sir Edward Hudson Kinahan, the well known manufacturer of Irish whisky, is dead.

He was descended from an old Cork family, that was staunchly attached to the house of Stuart, and suffered prosecution and confiscation for that reason.

His father, Robert H. Kinahan, grew rich in the whisky business, and was high sheriff and lord mayor of Dublin and justice of the peace.

Sir Edward was also high sheriff of Dublin, and was created a baronet in 1887. He was very wealthy and had two county seats, besides a town residence. In politics he was a conservative. He died at Maryboro, in Queens county.

FAILED IN THEIR WORK.

Attempt to Wreck a Southern Train.

Narrow Escape of Fifty Passengers on the Louisville & Nashville Road.

Milan, Tenn., March 8.—An attempt was made Sunday night to wreck a Louisville & Nashville passenger train near Stanton. The train was running at a high rate of speed and just before reaching the long trestle east of Stanton, the engineer saw an obstruction on the track, but was unable to stop the train.

The pilot of the engine was knocked off and the engine derailed. There were over fifty passengers on board and they were badly shaken up by the shock. An investigation showed that heavy timbers had been placed on the trestle supports, projecting above the track over two feet.

RESULTED IN A SHOOTING.

Southern People Get Out Their Guns to Settle Difficulties.

Florence, S. C., March 8.—Tom Talbert, a machinist, suspected Charles Berrenger, one of the managers of the Central hotel, of ruining his daughter and cowhided him on Saturday.

Yesterday he met the Berrenger brothers, Charles and B. H., and the trouble was renewed. Blows were exchanged and Talbert was shot.

Talbert is said to have been the father of the International Order of Machinists and was at one time its international president. The Berrengers, both young men, are in jail. The feeling runs high and the jail is guarded as an outbreak is expected.

SMALLPOX ON BOARD

The Steamer Dania From Hamburg in Quarantine.

New York, March 8.—The discovery of a smallpox patient in the steerage of the steamship Dania when she arrived from Hamburg caused her detention at quarantine.

The victim was Andicio Wortkowski, an Austrian, 18 years old. He was removed to the East Sixteenth street reception hospital yesterday afternoon, and the other steerage passengers, 837 in number, were vaccinated and held on board. Health Officer Jenkins ordered the vessel to be thoroughly fumigated.

The 98 cabin passengers were landed at the Hoboken pier of the line.

Farmers Moving for Better Roads.

Young Man Arrested Charged With Stealing From His Grandmother—Insane Man Picked Up in the Streets.

Findlay, O., March 8.—(Special)—A young man from Bowling Green who is said to be a son of James English was picked up on the street yesterday by the police. He was in a partially demented condition. He has been at the Toledo asylum. His father was notified and came after him.

Stole Two Notes.

Charles McCracken, a young man from Arcadia, is in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury on the charge of stealing two notes from his old grandmother. He was given a hearing before the village justice and bound over to court. He was unable to secure bail.

Will Play at Washington.

Will E. Hoy, the famous mute ball player of this city, has signed to play with the Washington city club the coming season at the handsome salary of $3,500. He left yesterday for Baltimore to go into practice. The club is preparing for a southern trip.

The Growing Wheat.

Many discouraging reports are brought in from the farmers in this vicinity regarding the deplorable condition of the growing wheat crop.

Many predict unless there is a decided change for the better, that it will not amount to more than a half crop.

There has not been snow enough to protect it.

Want Better Roads.

The farmers of Monroe township, this county, realizing the value of good roads, have a numerously signed petition to the legislature for the right to levy a small tax to begin piking the principal roads.

They want the privilege of voting on this important measure at the coming election. It will carry beyond a doubt. Every township in the county should do likewise.

OHIO YACHT CLUB.

The Directors Address the Members

And Secretary John Gunckel Issues a Few Notices in His Characteristic Manner—The Coming Meeting.

The board of directors of the Ohio Yacht club addresses the members as follows:

"Our financial difficulties have been amicably and satisfactorily adjusted, and it is now the determination to carry out the ideas and designs of the founders of the club, and to make it the largest and most popular organization of the kind on the chain of lakes.

The club is already large, prosperous and progressive, and by proper effort on the part of the members during the present season, we can become precisely what the promoters of the club contemplated at the beginning. The membership in its personnel is something of which we can be proud. The advantages offered by the club, even in a social way, are greater than that of any other institution in the city.

We have resolved to increase these advantages, and with the opportunity we have this should not be difficult. A plan has been suggested by which it can be accomplished. We have decided to ask each member to bring into the club one or more acceptable members.

We should make the O. Y. C. something to which Toledo can point with pride. In doing this we benefit ourselves most.

Let us begin at the meeting to be held Friday evening, March 11, 1892."

The sweet singer of Oberlin, Secretary John Gunckel, issues special notices as follows:

James B. Cogans has been appointed official collector.

At the meeting Friday evening of this week, for the edification and pleasure of the members, Capt. Hickok will furnish and play one of the "wonderful aeolians."

Also Gates, Edson, Franz and Quale, having discovered new evidence relative to the muskalonge case, will again be heard.

Interesting letters will be read from Mr. A. C. Barker, lieutenant U. S. N.

Report from Capts. Purney and Curtis, "Sea Sickness at Bermuda."

INDICTED.

Tutor Morland Must Answer to the Court for Blackmail.

London, March 8.—The grand jury at the Old Bailey has found a true bill against Maitland Francis Morland, the Oxford tutor, for attempting to obtain from Lord Hothfield the sum of £70 and other moneys by false pretenses. Morland will be put on trial at an early day.

ARE COMING TO TOLEDO

Three Eminent Sociologists to Visit the City

And Discuss Matters of General Importance.

They Wish to Consult with Everybody Who Can Throw Any Light on the Industrial Situation.

Dr. W. W. Williams, Geo. R. Haynes and S. C. Schenck are on local committee arranging for a novel event.

Three eminent sociologists, Washington Gladden, Gen. Roeleff Brinkerhoff and Dr. Sydney Strong are to be in Toledo Tuesday, March 15, for the purpose of holding two meetings at the chapel of the First Congregational church from 2 to 4:30 and 7 to 9:30 p. m., to investigate the social and industrial situation.

The three gentlemen last named were appointed by the association of Congregational churches to take this matter up with a view to giving counsel to those with whom they are associated as to the best methods of dealing with this delicate problem.

These gentlemen are not meddlers. They have no axes to grind, but are merely investigating the matter in an unbiased manner. Those who can throw any light upon the subject are requested to attend the meetings.

There will be no extended remarks; the meetings will take the forms of consultations.

One meeting of the kind has already been held in the state, at Columbus. The Toledo meeting will be the second, and others will follow at Cleveland and Cincinnati.

The subjects to be taken up, or rather on which the committee desire to be instructed, are outlined in the following questions:

Do you think that the present relations of employers and laborers are satisfactory?

If not, can they be improved, and if so, in what manner?

Are the laboring classes suffering under any burdens or disabilities which can be removed by the action of government? or of a sound public opinion?

Do you think that any changes in the organization of industry are feasible—such for example, as take the direction of industrial partnership?

Do you think that the nationalization of industry is practicable?

Do laboring men, as a class, complain of the churches; if so, what are their complaints?

The committee will be glad to hear from any who have views to present on these questions. Their session being limited, it may be necessary to restrict the time given to individuals, and it would be a convenience if those who have something to say would present their views briefly in writing.

Those who intend to appear are also requested to notify the local committee of their purpose, at as early a day as possible.

A WELL OR NO WELL.

The Castalia Trout Club in Court

Against Its Neighbor—An Interesting Injunction Suit Which is a Novelty in That Line.

An injunction suit has been filed in the common pleas court of Erie county, at Sandusky, which is a decided departure in the line of law blockade as well as being of interest to the Toledo members of the Castalia Trout club.

In Erie county there is a stream known as Cold creek, which is owned and has been stocked with trout by two fishing clubs, the Castalia Sporting club and the Castalia Trout club.

The stream has been divided into two sections, upper and lower.

The Castalia Trout club confines its sport to the upper section, while the Castalia Sporting club seeks pleasure within the limits of the lower section.

Whether one club catches the most fish than the other, or tells a bigger fish yarn, the two clubs do not lie down in the same bed of roses, lion and lamb fashion.

To the contrary, contention has been long and bitter, and now it has been thrown at the feet of justice.

The stream is fed by numerous clear water springs, the water from which first flows into a reservoir and thence into the stream.

To keep their end up the members of the Castalia Sporting club on the lower section drilled an eight inch well, and struck a subterranean flow of water of immense volume, which poured forth at the opening in the stream.

It was deemed the proper thing and forthwith arrangements for another well were completed. Here is where the law comes in.

The Castalia Trout club above, appeared in court and procured a temporary injuction restraining the Castalia Sporting club from drilling any more wells in that locality.

The petition alleges that the flow of water thus tapped by artificial means is the same that supplies the springs that feeds the pond that replenishes the creek that they fish in. Hence if the well drilling is not stopped they will soon have no water to fish in.

LIFE IN A GROWING CITY.

People Know Not the Cares of Others.

The Sad Case of Mrs. Paine, Who Was Taken to the Infirmary by the Officers.

In a little shanty, probably 12x15 feet, and situated on Monroe street near Erie, lived a woman who gives her age as 54 years and her name as Mrs. Paine.

It hardly seems possible that a person could exist in such quarters. In the front of the room is a stock of candies and small toys, with which the woman tried to carry on a business.

A curtain divides the room, the back part serving as a sleeping apartment. A chair and a cook stove, made a crowded condition of affairs in the little room where a human being ate, slept, drank and carried on a business.

Sunday night Mrs. Paine was taken suddenly ill, which proved to be a stroke of paralysis. Since that time she has been cared for by neighbors until to-day, when Infirmary Director Baumbach ordered her taken to the infirmary.

McGlynn's ambulance was called and the suffering woman conveyed hither. She has acted rather peculiar since the stroke and refuses to take the medicine prescribed for her.

Where is This Boasted American Protection

That a Licensed Engineer of the United States

Can be Assaulted in Foreign Lands?

Engineer Campbell Tells a Story That Tends to Curl the Hair of People Who Read in Books of American Pluck.

New York, March 8.—Bernard Campbell is not a fighting man. His fondness for peace and the sufferings he went through in order to avoid going to war have earned a judgment of $10,000 for him against Jiminez, Haustedt & Co. If the story of Campbell told on the witness stand in the superior court is true, he got very little protection from the American government's representatives in Hayti three years ago, when an attempt was made to force him on board the gunboat Carondelet, of Hippolyte's navy. The jury evidently believed his story.

Bernard Campbell is a grizzled old man. He holds an "unlimited" license as a marine engineer. This qualifies him to run the engine of a steamship of any size. He came home from a trip to Panama early in April, 1889, and stayed at Collins' boarding house, No. 59 West street. Soon after his arrival some one left word at the boarding house that Jiminez, Haustedt & Co. wanted to see Campbell at their office in Hanover square. What happened to him after he got there Campbell related on the witness stand before Judge McAdam and a jury a few days ago.

He said: "I called at the office and met Mr. Haustedt. He said he wanted engineers for service on vessels in the West Indies, and that he was willing to pay $250 a month for a term of six months. I asked him what was the nature of the service. He said, 'On American vessels with American crews and American officers. It is pleasant work.' He didn't say anything about having to fight.

"I thought, as hot weather was coming on and there was danger of yellow fever in southern ports, that $250 a month was not such very high pay, and I felt sure that Mr. Haustedt's word was good enough to make me certain of good treatment. He and I signed a contract in duplicate, and he told me to go aboard the steamship G. W. Clyde, of the Clyde line, the next morning. I did so. I had been promised tickets for my trip down and my trip back at the end of the contract, but on board the steamship nobody seemed to know anything about the matter beyond the fact that my fare had been paid in one direction. A few days later we arrived at Cape Haytien. We anchored alongside of the steamship Carondelet, which had been bought in New York by Insurgent Hippolyte's agents, taken to Hayti and loaded with cannon and ammunition. Capt. Compton, who commanded the Carondelet for Hippolyte, came aboard and took away 24 men who had been drunk pretty nearly all the time between New York and Cape Haytien. He told me I was to go with them.

"I saw that the whole thing was a trap to make me fight in the service of Hippolyte, and I refused to go. The agent coaxed me first, then he swore at me and threatened me, and said I would be punished for not keeping my contract. Capt. Kelly and Purser Colville, of the G. W. Clyde, told me that I must go with this man. I refused. Capt. Kelly told me I must get off the ship. I had plenty of money with me, and I offered to pay him for my trip down from New York and for my passage back there. He refused to let me stay on the ship. However, he told me I might remain that night. Capt. Compton said:

"'You'll go aboard the Carondelet, or be shot and be d—— to you.'

"Next morning I hired a native boat and called upon Admiral Bancroft Gherardi on his flag ship, the Galena, which lay at anchor in the harbor, with the Ossipee near by. I explained my predicament to Admiral Gherardi and asked him for protection. He said: 'I can't protect you from keeping your contract. You must live up to it. I can only refer you to the American consul, Mr. Gautier.' I said I understood that Gautier was working for Hippolyte. Admiral Gherardi only replied that I must keep my contract. I said, "Well, if I can get no help from the American consul can I come back to you?' He answered 'No.' Then I went ashore and saw Mr. Gautier, the United States consul. I told him I had been ordered off the Clyde, although I had offered to pay my passage home to New York. Mr. Gautier said:

"'I will see Captain Compton and it will be all right. In the meantime you had better go aboard the Carondelet and stay there until the Clyde comes up again on her way to New York.'

'I thought that this was only a trap to get me on board the Carondelet, and I knew very well if they got me there they would never let me leave it alive. I told Mr. Gautier this, and, after a long argument, he finally gave me a passport upon which I might go as far as Monte Cristo, a port some distance down the island. I put my baggage aboard a trading schooner which lay out at the end of a long wharf and engaged passage on her to Monte Cristo. When I had stowed everything I found that the schooner was not very well provisioned, so I came up ashore to buy myself some sardines and other delicacies. In town I saw Captain Compton. He asked me if I was going aboard his ship and I told him no. He said:

"'Well, you'll be aboard the Carondelet or in hell to-morrow morning.' I went on up town and on my way back at dusk when I was half way down the long wharf I was ambushed by four negroes who wore the uniforms of Hippolyte's soldiers. They clubbed me until I was almost senseless and knocked out most of my front teeth. First I thought they were robbers, but they didn't take anything from me. When they had got tired of pounding me on the head they threw me overboard. I was too weak to swim and the tide drifted me under the wharf, but by that time I had revived enough to hold on to a beam, although I was not able to climb out of the water. The soldiers went away and came back presently with a lantern. This they lowered and looked around in the water. I thought they were searching for my body. After a little while they went away and I managed to crawl up on the wharf and make my way to the schooner. We sailed that night and got to Monte Cristo all right two days later.

"After I had been there two or three days the steamer G. W. Clyde came down to Monte Cristo with Mr. Jiminez on board. When he heard that I was in town he threatened to have me arrested for breaking my contract with his firm. I knew very well that if I got into jail in Hayti I would probably never get out alive. I engaged passage on a schooner which was going to Turk's Island. Turk's Island is a British possession, and I felt that I would find protection there. At the last moment the captain of the schooner told me that he had been unable to get his papers at the custom house and could not sail. This convinced me that I was in great danger of being caught, so I took all the dunnage I could carry and started up the water front. Soon I found a little open sloop with two men aboard. The captain said he was bound for Turk's Island and that he had his clearing papers. All he was waiting for was his cargo.

"'Here's your cargo, right here,' I said, pulling out all the money I had left and giving it to him. I went aboard and he sailed at once. It took us five days to get to Turk's Island in that little open boat. We had very rough weather. Between the effects of my beating and the fright and the exposure I endured in this open boat I was almost dead when we arrived at Turk's Island. The British authorities took care of me there and as soon as I was well enough put me aboard an American schooner which took me to Lewes, Del."

The Verdict a Surprise.

Campbell began suit for $1,500 for breach of contract against Jiminez, Haustedt & Co. This suit is still in existence, but it is "reserved generally" in the city court. He got tired of his lawyer and retained Edmund R. Tersy, of No. 7 Nassau street. Mr. Terry brought suit for $50,000 damages in the superior court. Jiminez, Haustedt & Co. were defended by the firm of Tracy, Macfarland, Ivins, Boardman & Platt. They concluded not to try the issue, so Judge McAdam and the jury heard only the testimony of the plaintiff Campbell.

This procedure is technically called taking an inquest. After listening to the grizzled old sailorman's story the jury decided that he was entitled to $10,000 damages for the suffering he had undergone. Evidently this verdict was a surprise to the firm, for their lawyers promptly made a motion to open the inquest and have a trial.

This has been granted and the trial will probably come off in a few weeks. The head of the firm who defended Jiminez, Haustedt & Co., is the Hon. Benjamin F. Tracy, secretary of the navy. Thomas C. Platt's son is the Mr. Platt of the firm.

It is quite possible that some very interesting revelations will be made on the trial. Campbell says that Consul Gautier and the other representatives of the United States government in Hayti were full of "offensive partisanship" for Hippolyte.

THE READING COMBINE.

Public Sentiment Gathered on the Deal.

Petitions in Circulation All Over the State for Signatures Favorable to the Deal.

Reading, Pa., March 8.—The Philadelphia and Reading railroad, in order to back up its deal acquiring control of the Jersey Central, Lehigh Valley and other railroads, has undertaken to bring pressure to bear on the governor of this state by the force of public opinion.

Last night blank forms of petitions addressed to the governor and approving the deal reached every city, town and Hamlet in eastern Pennsylvania, where they were distributed at all public places and visitors asked to sign them. Some few refused, but in the large majority of instances where the power of this railroad company is predominant they were readily signed.

The petition to the governor is a curiosity in its way. It read thus:

To the Hon. Robert E. Pattison, Governor of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, citizens of the state of Pennsylvania and residents of the localities set opposite their names, respectfully represent:

That the arrangement recently consummated for a consolidation of the interests of the several coal producing regions with a view to the readjustment and equalization of prices will, if carried out, inure largely to the material benefit of the people of those regions and to the citizens of the whole state. With the legal questions before your attorney general in connection with the leases and agreements between several corporations affected by this consolidation we have nothing to do. As citizens of the state, and interested directly in her and their welfare we respectfully submit to you that the intent of the constitution to protect the material interests of the people of our own state will be best subserved by the fulfilment of the plans comprehended by the leases and agreement in question, as the agitation and uncertainty now prevailing in the coal trade defer the increase in the price of labor which we confidently expect to follow a favorable decision from your attorney general. We respectfully ask that the proceedings to determine the legality of the leases and agreements be brought to a determination as speedily as is consistent with the public welfare.

The probabilities are that opponents of the deal will get up a counter petition.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 8.—It is positively stated that Attorney General Hensel will go into court and ask for a permanent injunction to restrain the Reading railroad from carrying on business under the terms of the recent lease. Just when this step will be taken is not known, but it will probably be done just as soon as the papers in the case can be arranged.

OVERWHELMING EVIDENCE!

Of the Success of Dr. Copeland and Associates at 706 Madison Street.

Statements that are Candid, Straightforward and Convincing, and From Persons Whose Evidence is Beyond Dispute.

It is rarely that the specialist, whose observation covers a wide range of throat and lung troubles and whose experience brings him in contact with many of the serious and desperate cases resulting from neglected catarrh, sees a more pronounced case and one more typical of what head and throat trouble, if neglected or not properly treated, may develop into, than the case of Mr. Ancil G. Rice, of 219 Dix street. As near as possible we give his own words:

"My trouble has all been due to chronic catarrh," says Mr. Rice, "and it was not neglected, either, for I

Have Doctored for Years,

but been improperly treated. I had occasional violent headaches. My eyes were weak and watery and my nose was continually stopped up. I was forced to breathe through my mouth.

Ancil G. Rice, 219 Dix Street.

"My throat was always filling up with the dropping of the mucus from the head. I was hawking and spitting all the time. My throat was at times very sore and raw. My rest was poor at night and I was really unfit for business in the morning.

"As I said, I tried many prominent physicians, but experienced very little relief. I had heard and read of the success of Dr. Copeland and associates, and concluded to give them a trial. I did so with the result that my pains, aches and other troubles are all gone. The change in my condition is such that I unhesitattingly recommend Dr. Copeland and associates to all who suffer as I did."

NASAL POLYPI.

This Annoying and Painful Disease Described by a Victim.

(Nasal polypi are tumors that grow in the nasal cavities. They obstruct the passage of air through the nose, swell up in damp weather, or decrease somewhat in fair weather. They give rise to frontal headaches, fits of sneezing, coughing, asthma, facial neuralgia, pains in the neck and chest, and impair or destroy the senses of smell, taste or hearing. The breath often has a peculiar "mousy" odor, the margins of the nostrils become raw and excoriated, the eyes are watery and the voice has a nasal twang.)

"I had been troubled for a number of years," said Mr. George Hoffman, of 107 Empire street. "My head and nose was completely stopped up and I had to breathe through my mouth. This was due, in a measure, to the accumulation of mucus, but more especially to a number of polypi tumors which filled both nostrils. I had treated with a number of physicians but none of them discovered the tumors. Some time ago I called on Dr. Copeland and associates, and placed myself under their treatment. They immediately removed seven polypi tumors and I was able to breathe through my nostrils, something I had not done in years. They then treated my catarrh, and I am happy to say I am feeling better to-day than I have for years. The removal of the tumors was without the slightest pain or loss of blood. I cannot recommend Dr. Copeland and associates too highly."

Results in a Case Treated by Mail.

Portage, O., Feb. 9, 1892.

Copeland Medical Institute, Toledo, O.:

Gentlemen:—Since taking your treatment for catarrh, I am very much better. My general health is much improved, my sense of smell has returned. My case was a chronic one and will require time. I am greatly encouraged and anticipate a complete cure. Refer anyone to me.

ANOTHER INSTANCE.

A Prominent Real Estate Agent Tells of the Removal of Twenty Polypi Tumors.

Among the many prominent real estate agents in Toledo, none are more popular or more favorably known than Mr. J. J. Sumner, whose offices are at the corner of Superior and Madison streets, and who lives at 721 Prouty avenue. Mr. Sumner tells of his experience with Dr. Copeland and associates as follows:

"I had catarrh for a long time. My nose stopped up so that I could breathe only with great difficulty. In damp weather I could not breathe at all. I suffered from terrible, racking headaches. I often thought my head would burst with the throbbing and the pain. There was the constant flow of mucus from my nose, and my eyes became sore and watery. I did not sleep well, and I found that I was losing my sense of smell. I was most distressed, however, about my voice, which changed in tone until it sounded as if I pinched my nose with my fingers while talking.

"I was quite in despair, when after reading the testimonials of the patients of Dr. Copeland and associates I determined to make a trial of their treatment. I accordingly went to the Copeland Medical Institute, and it was only a short time until I began to breathe through my nose, until the headaches disappeared and until the polypus growths were removed. I can now hear the natural voice that has returned to me, much to my comfort and delight. I sleep well and I feel well. I have only one fear, and that is that the polypi may return, so I have concluded to continue the treatment for another month, at the end of which time I shall be forever rid, I hope, of the complaint that for four years made life a burden to me. I am glad to add my small tribute of praise to the splendid work of these physicians."

THE NEW ARMY REGISTER

It is Out Two Months Ahead of Time.

Important Changes Made in Officers.

A Good Piece of News for People to Cut Out and Save for Reference in Case We Fight the Indians.

Washington, March 8.—The new Army Register appears two months earlier than the 1891 register did, being dated January 1 instead of March 1. The changes shown, therefore, are for 10 months instead of a year.

Among the major generals there is no change, Gens. J. M. Schofield, O. O. Howard and N. A. Miles appearing as on the previous register.

In the list of brigadier generals the name of Gen. John Gibbon is missing, that officer having been retired and having been succeeded by Gen. A. V. Kautz. The six briladiers on the register are Gens. A RUN-AWAY MARRIAGE

That Terminated in Murder and Suicide.

Strange Case Unearthed by the Police at Lowell, Massachusetts.

Lowell, Mass., March 8.—The room of Edgar G. Drew and wife in Howe's lodging house in Elliott street was broken into after repeated attempts to talk with Drew. Mrs. Drew was found dead in bed, having been shot through the forehead, while her husband lay beside her with a bullet hole in his head.

Drew was conscious, but professed ignorance as to how his wife was shot and told conflicting stories. A revolver was found in the bed with four chambers empty. Drew claimed that there had been no trouble between himself and his wife. Neither of them had been seen for 24 hours. Dr. Irish said that the woman had been dead several hours.

It has been learned that two years ago, when she was 15 years old, Mrs. Drew, whose maiden name was Clara Bergerona, ran away and married Drew in Suncock, N. H. Her mother went crazy over the marriage, and is now at the Wilton, N. H., town farm. Drew is about 25 years of age. It is said that he was jealous of his wife and had threatened her with a razor. He cannot live.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Harper's Bazar says there have been many speculations as to the origin of this old song, the first verse of which runs thus:

"The Campbells are coming, O-ho! O-ho!
The Campbells are coming, O-ho!
The Campbells are coming to bonnie Loch Leven,
The Campbells are coming, O-ho! O-ho!"

Some authorities have claimed that it was composed for Mary, Queen of Scots, on her imprisonment in the castle of Loch Leven, in 1567, an Argyle being then a supporter of the queen. Other authorities maintain that the words of this song itself bear internal evidence of its not having been written until nearly two centuries later. The date of its composition is now generally regarded as 1715, the time being that of the breaking out of the rebellion in the reign of George I, when the Earl of Mar raised the standard in favor of the Stuarts, and the great Duke of Argyle, John Campbell, was made commander-in-chief of his majesty's forces. It was to this duke that the successful suppression of this rebellion was largely due.

The earth is becoming crowded, so the Germans have decided, and there is no place to move to except frigid space, and to attain that one would have to leave the earth with a velocity of more miles the second than high explosives have yet attained. To those who know the extreme accuracy which marks modern German speculations the statement of such authorities as Wagner and Supan that the population of the earth has increased will afford food for thought. Following a careful method of calculation these students 10 years ago computed the population of the whole earth to be 1,400,000,000. Now the same investigators by the same method find the sum of the earth's population to be 1,480,000,000. Considering that the agricultural area of the earth is not capable of unlimited expansion, this increase at the rate of 8,000,000 the year cannot fail of presenting a startling view of an overcrowded world at no very remote epoch.

They give the following details of the distribution of this population by the larger natural divisions: Europe, 357,379,000 inhabitants; Asia, 825,954,000; Africa, 163,953,000; America, North and South, 121,713,000; Australia, with Tasmania, 3,230,000; the Oceanic islands, 7,120,000; polar regions, 80,400. The density of population as reckoned in the number of people to each square mile shows what a trifling effect has been produced on the older continents by 400 years of migration to the New World. The greatest density of population is found in Belgium, where 533 people are counted to the square mile. The Netherlands have 355, the United Kingdom 319, Italy 270, the German empire 233, Switzerland 184, France 182, Austria-Hungary 169, Denmark 146, Portugal 123, Servia 116, Roumania 97, Spain 88, Russia 48, Sweden 27, Norway 14. Of these European countries all but Norway show greater density than the United States and all but Russia, Sweden and Norway exceed the greatest density found in America. In Asia French and Portuguese India have 489 people to the square mile, Japan, 270, China 231, British India 195. The French possessions, with 64 to the square mile, exhibit the maximum density in the two Americas, the West Indies have 50, the United States 18, Mexico and Central America 15 each, Uruguay, Chili and Ecuador 10 each, Colombia 7, Peru 7, Venezuela 5, Brazil 4.8, Paraguay and the Argentine 3 each, Bolivia 2.5, British North America 1.6. Under the southern cross Australia has one and New Zealand five inhabitants to the square mile.

The largest elevators for carrying passengers in the world have just been completed on the banks of the Hudson, near Weehawken, says Harper's Weekly. The high table land in New Jersey, opposite New York city and between the Hudson river and the Hackensack, has up to this time not been used as generally for purposes of pleasure and residence as it should have been. This elevated plain, known as the palisades, is at its beginning some 150 feet above high tide, and is over a mile wide at the same point. It stretches north for many miles up the Hudson river, and naturally rises in elevation as it proceeds. This high land has been accessible only by steep grades for wagon roads and by means of stairways which climb laboriously up the steep cliff. The Hudson county Railroad company, which operates the elevated road at Hoboken and controls many of the street car lines in that neighborhood, has of late years been extending these lines and increasing the facilities for getting on top of the palisades and from one part of this high plateau to another. The most recent addition to the plant of this company has been the building of huge elevators at Weehawken, where ferry boats from Forty-second and Jay streets, New York city, discharge their passengers and where also the West Shore railway starts north and west to Albany and Buffalo. These elevators are the largest ever constructed for passengers, and in planning them the engineers have adopted new devices to secure their safety against accidents. From the elevators, which rise just from the water's edge, there is an immense viaduct or elevated railroad, which runs some 800 feet back of the hill, where connections will be made with the various steam and horse cars which run in one direction and another.

Chicago bids fair to acquire the electric current for light and power purposes from a distant source, even if the Niagara project fails. The Columbia Electric Transmission company, of Chicago, has been incorporated by Gustave Monrath, Charles G. Armstrong and Clarence Briggs, with a capital stock of $500,000, primarily to make an exhibit at the world's fair, demonstrating the practicability of long distance transmission of electric currents in large quantities, etc. Mr. Armstrong was formerly connected with the Monitor Electric company, and in a recent interview at his office in the auditorium is reported to have said: "We are now making arrangements by which we will control a waterfall of 2,000 horse power at Marseilles, Ill., a town 80 miles from Chicago, on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad. A plant will be erected there, wires strung, and by means of high tension currents this will give us at least 1,500 horse power in Chicago. As the cost of each horse power in this city at present is $70 a year, at that figure we should have an income of $105,000 a year from this plant alone, and the cost to us would be merely nominal. We shall have everything ready, and the plant in operation by the time the world's fair opens, and will make an exhibit in the electrical building, where the power may be used for lighting and other purposes. Mr. Monrath and myself are the electrical engineers, and we are confident the venture will prove a success.

The cries of her companion attracted a passer-by, who jumped into the cistern and saved the child's life.

PREACHER CALLED

To the Pastorate of St. Stephen's Lutheran Church.

Since the retirement of the Rev. J. F. Beates, St. Stephen's Lutheran church has been without a regular pastor, and what work has been done has been accomplished by Rev. E. L. T. Engers. This has not been satisfactory to the congregation, and the authorities have been on the lookout for a preacher.

A call has just been extended to Rev. Myers, of Rochester, Pa., and the reverend gentleman will be in the city on next Sunday, and will fill the pulpit, morning and evening.

Mr. Myers has not yet signified his acceptance of the call, but it is thought, after looking over the ground, he will conclude to come to Toledo. He is highly spoken of.

THE NOTEMAN BURNER.

Mr. Sam T. Fisk Hard at Work with the Wonderful Invention.

A few days since the Bee did our fellow townsman, Mr. Sam T. Fisk, an injustice by comparing him with that Napoleon of finance, Henry S. Ives.

Mr. Fisk is nothing of the kind. He is a hard-working, energetic, active business man, and pushes whatever he undertakes to a successful conclusion.

The Noteman burner business is a case in point. He has faith in this invention, has invested his money in it, and will place it on the market, if possible, upon its merits alone.

That he may succeed everybody wishes; that he will succeed, those expect, who have fully investigated the burner.

In Mr. Fisk's prosperity Toledo will share, for he has faith in Toledo, and is an enterprising citizen.

MESSRS HOUK AND VAN DUSEN

Desired to Make a Still Lower Rate—An Explanation.

A railroad man, speaking to a Bee this morning, said: "An item has been published by a Toledo paper quoting the action of the Central Traffic association in granting a rate of one fare for the round trip to parties attending meeting of G. A. R. at Piqua in May, and giving the detail vote upon same, might do an injustice to certain lines mentioned, and that full justice may be done those lines it is not only proper but just that it be explained, that the opposition to a rate of one fare upon the part of the Ohio Central and Pennsylvania lines was not an opposition to a reduced fare, but the belief, as expressed by both Messrs. Moulton Houk and Van Dusen, that a rate of one cent per mile should apply instead of one fare for the round trip, and a gallant fight in this direction was made by both gentlemen. It is only unfortunate that they were outnumbered."

THE LATE DR. LUNGREN.

A FINE SANITARIUM.

To Be Erected in East Toledo by Toledo Men.

They expect to have their buildings equal to any in this part of the country, and the site selected for the proposed plan is a very desirable one.

INJUNCTION CASE CONTINUED

In Circuit Court on Account of the Sudden Illness of Judge Scribner.

The refunding bond injunction suit, which was on hearing in circuit court, has been continued on account of the illness of Judge Scribner.

The argument was up to Mr. Smith, who would have closed the case before noon to-day. The hearing will be continued as soon as Judge Scribner is able to attend court.

FOR STEALING FURNITURE.

Mat Maler Gets Into the Toils and Goes to the Works.

Mat Maler, who was arrested the other day by Detective Kruse, for stealing a quantity of furniture, was tried in police court this morning on a charge of petit larceny.

The furniture was the property of Addie Hill, who holds forth at Dixon's theater and it was in a room which she rented to Maler, already furnished.

He sold the furniture for $10, claiming that it was his own and this brought him into the hands of the police. He was fined $20, costs and 10 days in the workhouse.

NO BENEFIT TO THE EXCHANGE.

An Advertising Dodge that Worked Successfully.

For several days past strangers have solicited advertisements for a descriptive pamphlet of Toledo to be published by an eastern firm. Some of the solicitors represented that the Woman's Exchange will receive a share of the publishers' profits, and upon such statement a number of prominent firms have contracted for space in the pamphlet. The ladies of the exchange most positively deny any interest in the scheme and are annoyed at the unwarranted use of the exchange to further this business for private profit.

LET THE WORK GO ON.

Another Splendid Building for East Toledo.

Court Victory, of the Ancient Order of Foresters, have determined to build a home of their own.

A lot will be purchased in a very short time on which a temple will be erected, to cost $20,000.

The structure will be of brick, three stories high, 50 feet wide and 100 feet long.

There will be store rooms on the first floor, offices on the second, and lodge rooms on the third.

Court Victory is one of the largest lodges in the state, having a membership of over 300 enterprising citizens and the success of their venture is assured.

MILES G. BUTLER DEAD.

An Old Toledoan Dies at Niles, O.

Miles G. Butler, a well known traveling salesman for the Maumee Rolling mills, died at Niles, O., Saturday. He was well known here and highly respected.

Mr. Butler was a relative of Mr. G. B. Orwig, of this city. For several years past he has been traveling salesman for the Mahoning Valley Iron company of this city and was very popular with the trade throughout the west.

He was stricken with heart trouble about the middle of December last and since that time has been struggling bravely for his life, but other complications setting in he was obliged to succumb.

He bore his sufferings patiently to the end without a murmur, and, surrounded by those nearest and dearest to him, his spirit passed peacefully and calmly away.

THE CONSOLIDATED AGAIN.

A Damage Suit Results from the Wires at the Lake Shore Crossing at Auburndale.

A suit has been filed in common pleas court, growing out of the wreck which occurred at the junction of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad and the Consolidated street railway at Auburndale a short time ago.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Marion E. Fuller, and she sues the Consolidated to recover $10,000 damages for personal injuries.

She alleges in her petition that she was a passenger on a Monroe street car, January 9. That she desired to alight at Snead avenue, but the driver wilfully and negligently carried her by the street.

That a Lake Shore train collided with the car in which she was a passenger, and knocked it from the track, injuring her to such an extent that she will never fully recover.

ADVERTISING FOR A WIFE.

Bent was to have a newspaper! The village gossips had something to talk about now; and they improved the opportunity. Everybody and everybody's relatives and their friends were expected to patronize "the newspaper," of course; if for no other reason, to encourage the enterprising young men, who were to be "editors and proprietors."

Each of the several merchants Bent contained were to publish three or four flaming advertisements apiece; both of the hotels were going to flourish in great capitals in the columns of the "Bent Examiner," if they flourished nowhere else; in fact, all who were engaged in any business would advertise, and those who had no profession or trade to advertise, would "take the paper."

Eugene McDaniels belonged to the latter class; he had not yet commenced practicing at the bar, for which he was studying, unless a little at the bar of the Eagle hotel. Eugene had subscribed for the "Bent Examiner," but he was ambitious to do more than that, and the only thing he could think of was to advertise for a wife; accordingly, the first issue of the paper contained, in a very conspicuous portion of its local column, the following announcement:

"Any of the lady readers of this paper who will be kind enough to write to the subscriber, who is the ugliest-looking single man in this town, will find a faithful correspondent, and perhaps something more. Address Box 111."

Now Eugene knew that he was not the "ugliest-looking single man in town." He was conscious of being good-looking enough to attract more than one pair of bright eyes.

Many were the conjectures as to who owned "Box 111," and the postmaster had some difficulty in evading the questions of those who were anxious to know who "111" was; but he remembered his instructions too well to betray his name.

Eugene had a younger sister who was just as mischievous as himself, and though he was as fond of sport as anyone need be, he always thought it incumbent upon him to check her when her flow of spirits was too exuberant to suit his fastidiousness. Helen felt a little afraid of her brother, and she dreaded his sarcasm so much that she would do almost anything rather than incur his displeasure.

Now Helen read the Bent Examiner, and, as a matter of course, she was interested in that one item of the local column more than in all the rest of the paper, and from the first moment after the perusal of the advertisement she was resolved to answer it.

A few days subsequent to the first appearance of the Bent Examiner Eugene received a letter which read nearly as follows:

"Poor 111: I pity you sincerely, for have always been called a horrid fright. 'Misery loves company,' you know, and perhaps that is sufficient to explain my motive for answering your advertisement. If you see fit to answer this, well and good, if not, I'll not write to you again."

This signed, sealed and dispatched, Helen waited quite patiently for the reply, which was not long in coming. Eugene selected it from among a number of others, to be answered first. It is not necessary to chronicle all the nonsense that passed between them; neither suspected the other, though Helen thought she detected some resemblance to the handwriting of first one and then another of her acquaintances.

Finally they agreed to meet. Eugene gave his "fair correspondent" the privilege of selecting the time and place for their first meeting. As she knew all the young men in the neighborhood, she did not fear any untoward circumstances would occur, but, thinking it might be some one she might not wish to receive visits from after he knew she had written such familiar letters to him, she resorted to a little subterfuge by writing him that if he would meet her at her friend's, Helen McDaniels', she would be there any evening he might designate.

She received an answer the next morning, desiring her to be at Dr. McDaniels' that evening.

In Bent, people ate their meals at seasonable hours, and the doctor's family were no exception to the general rule; they drank their tea at 6 o'clock, and as soon as it was over Helen went up to her own room to make some improvements in her toilet. She soon came down into the parlor, dressed becomingly, and looking as fresh as a rose. What was her surprise to find Eugene there before her, "fixed up in his best bib and tucker," as Helen afterwards said.

He looked up as she came into the room, and asked if she was going out.

"No, I was expecting company this evening," she replied. "But where are you going?"

"I thought I would go up and see Retta Pinneo a little while; who do you expect here, is it any one I want to see?"

"No, you go on if you're going; it's no one you want to see, or that wants to see you, either."

"Don't be so sure about that, little sister; I believe, after all, I won't go out; I'll stay and see who is coming here."

Helen knew she might as well keep still, so she made no further reply, but, seating herself at the piano, commenced playing. When she grew tired of playing he pulled the easy chair up by the window for her, and seated himself by her side.

"Come, Helen, tell me who your visitor is, won't you?" he coaxed.

"No, you'll find out if you wait long enough," was her answer.

"Well," said he, "I can't wait any longer to find out; I guess I'll go up to Squire Pinneo's and see if Retta is going to the party next Thursday."

He went out on the steps, and a minute after heard his sister at the piano again; he knew she could not see steps from the position she must occupy at the instrument. He waited a few minutes, and then descending the steps took three or four hasty strides along the walk, then turned and ran quickly up to the door and rang the bell loudly. Their one servant girl came at the summons. Making a quick signal to her to keep quiet, he in a feigned voice inquired:

"Is Miss McDaniels in?"

The girl, taking her cue from him, answered accordingly, and approaching the parlor door Eugene saw, as she opened it, that his ruse had succeeded. Helen pretended to be completely absorbed in her music, though he was sure he had detected a sly glance directed toward the door by his sister when Bridget opened it, but he knew she could not have seen him. A moment later he had his hands over both her eyes.

"Guess my name," he cried, still in the feigned voice he had used when speaking to Bridget.

"Do take your hands from my face," was Helen's petulant rejoinder.

"Not till you guess my name and why I came."

She guessed the names of several young men of her acquaintance, those whom she had hoped it might be; at last she said, laughingly:

"I suppose it must be '111.'"

A great light immediately dawned upon his mind.

"Helen, did you answer that advertisement?" he asked, dropping his hands from her eyes in amazement.

"Why, Eugene! are you '111?'" asked Helen, in a tone of mingled surprise and anxiety.

He acted at first to compromise with her, promising not to say anything in regard to the affair if she would not, for, like most people who delight in teasing others, he very much disliked having others laugh at him. But it was too good a chance for her to get up a laugh against him, and she could not resist the temptation; she told the story to the family, with Bridget for a witness, who had remained at the door long enough to see the denouement, and, though they laughed at her nearly as much as at Eugene, calling her their "scarecrow," and quoting such portions of her letters to "111" as he told them, when they wished to tease her, yet she had the satisfaction that Eugene was "served with the same sauce." The story soon got abroad through the village, and both were unmercifully bantered by their friends.—New York News.

A BUSINESS CHANGE.

Mr. A. J. Smith, the old and popular dry goods, millinery and notion merchant, who has been doing a most successful business at No. 320 Monroe street for years past, has sold out the entire business to Mr. B. G. Lowe, who is a thoroughly practical dry goods man with large experience.

It is Mr. Lowe's intention to add largely to his stock and he will endeavor in every way possible to supply the wants of the many patrons of the place by keeping a first-class stock, and selling at low prices.

EARLY FIREARMS.

Some Account of Ornamentation in the Sixteenth Century.

As a weapon of war the hand-gun has been in use since the latter half of the fourteenth century; but the opposition of knights to the introduction of fire-arms will account for the lack of ornamentation upon cannon, guns, and pistols at a time when both arms and armor were lavishly decorated. It was not until the commencement of the sixteenth century that, with the invention of a wheel-lock in Germany, the gun became a sporting weapon and attained popularity. Efforts were then made tastefully to fashion and decorate such firearms as were destined for use by the followers of the chase.

The shaft of the sporting cross-bow was the model from which the butt of the early sporting gun was designed, and the ornamentation chiefly consisted of carved scrolls, or figures, and arabesques—designs cut out of horn, bone, metal or fancy woods inlaid in the butt and forends of the gun. The barrels, thick and heavy, were usually octagonal, but occasionally elaborately fluted and chiseled into the resemblance of a column, with Corinthian capitals and figures in full relief. Suhl, in Rhenish Prussia, which, in the fifteenth century, was famed for its swords and cross-bows, commenced early in the following century to manufacture the hand-gun, winning an enviable reputation for this weapon, although individual manufacturers of Suhl have never enjoyed the distinction accorded some of the Dresden rifle makers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The sporting guns and rifles made in Saxony had barrels of great weight, permitting elaborate carving, fluting and turning of the metal, whilst barrels made in the neighborhood of Brescia were more accurately executed and finished, more simple in design, than those of German manufacture, owing less to the carver and turner than to the smith for their beauty. The Spanish smiths rivaled the famous Italian families of Comminazo and Lazarino in the production of accurately-made gun-barrels. Those made by Nicolas Bis, who died in 1722, were considered to be without equal, although they doubtless owed more to their forging than the elegance of their exterior.

The maker of the barrel rarely mounted it, and the mounters or gun-makers depended upon the jewelers, carvers, chiselers, and kindred artists for the ornamentation of the weapon. With single-barreled guns, the makers, in their method of ornamentation invariably treated the barrel as a column, more frequently following the Corinthian than the Doric order. With the adoption of small shot into general use, lighter guns were demanded, so the deep flutings and carved capitals were discarded for the "Spanish form"—a term retained by gunmakers to denote a model, which is still manufactured in modified form. In this style the breech-end, one-third of the length of the barrel, is octagonal, forming the plinth of a column; there is a fanciful fillet, and the barrel is continued cylindrical, or slightly taper to the muzzle, where another fillet is the finishing capital.—The Magazine of Art for March.

Gen. Alger is on the active list. He possesses a good-sized bar'l and is a protected lumber baron.

An anti-Pinkerton bill has passed the New York senate, and labor organizations are jubilant over this beginning of victory.

Mr. Blaine should be able to settle that little seal fishery trouble before he and Mr. Harrison retire to private life next March.

The New York assembly is determined to investigate the Keeley gold cure institute. It doesn't want its drunkards to die from other than "natural causes."

New York is for Hill by a gain of 218 supervisors over last year's returns, for the republicans. Perhaps this supervisor business is like Gen. Hancock's tariff—only a local affair.

The fight against Mr. W. I. Squire, foremost republican of Toledo and Ohio, continues among those who are jealous of his past accomplishments. Mr. Squire is a captain general of aggressiveness and naturally becames involved in an occasional row.

High tariff advocates assert that the beneficence of that wonderful law is what attracts all emigration to this country. But the United Kingdom, a free trade country, is putting up lawful bars against immigration from the protected countries of the old world. What does that mean?

The Indianapolis Press club has a library which contains only the works of Hoosier authors. As one reads the long list, in which are many distinguished names, one has an added respect for the Hoosier state. Here is a hint for the Toledo Press club. A little effort would bring a notable collection together.

The American Wool Reporter says the English manufacturers are robbing the quality of their goods made for export to this country, and the Boston Journal prophecies that buyers and consumers here will find it out in time and be willing to pay higher prices for home goods and asks that another credit be scored for the McKinley law.

Which does the Southern planter need: a larger market for his cotton (and is that to be had?) or a limit to production? We are paying duty on cotton manufactured goods, even to the fine caluculation of counting threads. With a tax to save us from competition with foreign cheap labor, why, with our wonderful natural facilities and leading machinery, are we not making cotton goods for the world's markets?

The richest pickings the Indian agents ever had and the most systematic robbing of the red man that was ever known, has been carried on under republican rule for the last twenty-five years. Now the pious howl that goes up from them because a democratic congress with a depleted treasury on one hand and a clamor for appropriations on the other, is obliged to go slow even with poor Lo and his necessities—it would be amusing if it were not so hypocritical and contemptible.

An overwhelming majority in a legislative body is generally unwieldly and often dangerous to itself. The present democratic house of congress is likely to be a disastrous example of this fault of majorities. The statesmen imaigne they are the country and proceed to parcel it out to suit their own fancy. The silver issue in their hands is a burning hot poker, which is likely to jeopardize the elections of this year. The determination to make silver the political issue is ill-timed and unwise. The people want both gold and silver, but they will not have a debased dollar, and no such policy can be made party principle. Speaker Crisp would better read the signs of the times over again before he commits the whole house and the whole party to a seventy-cent dollar craze. If the democratic party loses New York, Connecticut and New Jersey upon this issue, pray what states will make up their 51 electoral votes? In the name of sound principle and good party politics, will somebody tell us where to go for enough votes, if democratic states refuse to indorse fiatism.

Taking Commissioner Raum's testimony before the investigating committee as a basis for calculations, the appropriation for pensions for 1893 has been scaled down a half million from that made by the last congress and $12,000,000 below Mr. Raum's estimate. No lover of his country would see an old soldier defrauded of a cent that should be his or deprived of the necessities or comforts of life, but when testimony shows that thirty-five employes of the bureau got their pensions rerated and the claims pushed through without difficulty while old soldiers whose claims had been long standing were put off without promise or hope; and when it is also shown that shark attorneys have made great fortunes in a few years out of the taxpayer on one hand and the pensioner on the other—it is small wonder that the veterans themselves are beginning to realize they must do something in self-defense. What amount of treasure has gone into dishonest and unworthy hands that should have helped to make life comfortable for soldiers and their families whose claims are righteous and just can never be calculated. The effort to purge this important branch of the government's business should be commended and aided by all honest citizens with the question of partisanship entirely left out.

NEW COLUMBIAN STUDIES.

The approach of the Columbus world's celebration brings prominently into discussion every phase of the career of the great navigator. The lecture which Prof. John Fiske is delivering to pleased audiences gives an impetus to the study of the history of those days of voyage and discovery, in which new facts, brought out by close research, a comparison of authorities, and a retranslation of authentic letters, are presented. President Charles K. Adams, of Cornell University, in the current number of the Magazine of American History quite fully decides upon the place where Columbus made his first landing. Ancient charts and descriptions confirm the belief almost to a certainty that Watling's island (San Salvador) was the spot where the eyes, weary of the waste of waters, first saw "the green trees and the level landscape with verdure delightful to behold." If the talked-of design of representing the landing of Columbus with the land scene as nearly correct as may be possible, should be carried out at Chicago, the natural conditions at hand will be in good form for the live pictorial reproduction.

An interesting feature of the paper is the translation of Herr Croneau's description of his visit and investigations in San Domingo, where it has been contended the remains of Columbus still rest. On the morning of January 11, 1891, assembled in the old cathedral of San Domingo, in the presence of government authorities, foreign consuls and dignitaries, Herr Croneau was allowed to inspect the ancient lead coffin, which it takes three keys to open, one in the hands of the archbishop and two in the hands of different government officials, and look upon the bones and dust, supposably, of the discoverer of America. The inscriptions on the coffin, the position which it occupied at the right hand of the altar, and the fact that the coffin which the Spaniards carried away bears no inscription whatever, all confirm the belief of Herr Croneau that the remains of Columbus are within the walls of the old San Domingo Cathedral. The coffin was discovered in 1877, and in that year was placed in its present position, wound with white ribbon and the seals of San Domingo, the church, the consulates of Spain, Italy, Germany, England, France, Holland and the United States were put upon it.

These remained intact until they were broken for the inspection of Herr Croneau in '91, who bore letters from his government which induced the guardians, in the presence of those mentioned to allow the remains to be seen. Herr Croneau, who has left no stone unturned and no letter undeciphered in his search after facts, is satisfied that his conclusions are correct.

Now let Chicago turn the world upside down and secure those sacred and precious relics and build a wonderful monument to enshrine them in commemoration of the year and its event.

All Want to be "Ladies."

A law regulating the hours of labor for women in New York is in danger of defeat because the "ladies" behind the counters of dry-goods stores object to being classed with the "girls" at the benches in factories. It is such little foibles of the fair sex as this that knock the logical argument in favor of granting the suffrage to women into the middle of the millennium.—Chicago Times.

Business with the Lion.

The importance of our commerce with Great Britain is shown by the fact that she takes $172,000,000 out of a total of $275,000,000 of our exports of farm products. It would be biting off the nose to spite the face if we shut off that commerce in a quarrel over a lot of seals.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

GIVING UP HIS GOLD.

Gould Making Good Use of His Enormous Wealth.

New York, March 8.—Jay Gould has given $25,000 to the University of the City of New York. The gift was made a few days after he gave his check for $10,000 to the Presbyterian church extension committee.

It was Mr. Gould's desire that the gift should be kept a secret, but the Rev. Dr. John R. Paxton, the pastor of the church which Mr. Gould and his family attend, let out the fact unintentionally to a reporter.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT.

Upper Sandusky, O., March 8.—The Pittsburg, Akron & Western railway effected a satisfactory settlement in all claims against it, and the appointment of Walter Ritchie, of Lima, by Judge Smalley, of the common pleas court here, making him receiver of the road, was annulled. This ends the controversy, and the matter is now out of court.

Professor Cragin is one of the foremost geologists and paleontologists in this country, and has made some important discoveries in Colorado and Kansas.

Baron Kelvin, (better known as Sir William Thompson) takes for his new title the name of a small stream near Glasgow, originally clear, but now an open drain for sewage and disgustingly foul. ALL THAT GLITTERS, ETC.

Every Offer That Toledo Concerns Receive

Is Not a Gold Mine, and Although People Sometimes Talk as Though They Would Pull Up Stakes, Don't Fear, They Won't.

From time to time reports are circulated to the effect that such and such large manufacturing concerns are about to remove from Toledo, or rather that the concerns in question have received flattering offers to remove to other cities.

It is oftimes the case that establishments in receipt of such offers make quite an ado over the matter, bluster about and talk as if they really were going.

It makes a good point for them and they are not averse to using it, although the fact is that the offers are merely feelers from various real estate men throughout the country who have not any particular firm in mind but just address their stereotyped form of letter generally in hopes that it may hit someone with whom they can make a dicker.

It is possible of course that such a dicker might be made to the entire satisfaction of all concerned but they are very uncertain and "there's many a slip," etc.

Local manufacturers receive many of these letters.

R. A. Stevens, speaking of the matter, said he has received six of late. Extracts from a sample from a western boom-town real estate broker are as follows:

"It will be unnecessary to refer to the wonderful growth of ——, or the advantages it has to offer to manufacturing interests located near this wonderful center of commerce, but I desire to call your especial attention to the advantages which I am prepared to offer manufacturers who may desire to locate near ——.

"I represent a manufacturing town on the south side of the city. It is far enough away for living and rents to be cheap for the laboring man, and near enough to have all the advantages of the city itself for the manufacturer. Railroad connections are made with every road entering into ——, freights are the same as to and from the city proper, and the location is unexcelled. There are many other advantages that I cannot refer to in a brief letter.

I am prepared to offer responsible concerns employing a number of men all the land required for the erection of necessary buildings, and in addition a liberal cash bonus, based upon the number of men regularly employed.

This matter is worthy of your attention and will bear investigation. We have a good town," etc.

THE CITY'S GAS PLANT.

Manager Heston Makes an Interesting Report

Relative to the Cost of Construction and Income.

Meeting of the Gas Trustees Monday Evening—The Northwestern's Little Bill—Tips Again on Tap.

The request of Mr. Leander Burdick, of the mayor's gas investigating committee, elicited some interesting and valuable information from Manager Heston at the meeting of the board of natural gas trustees Monday night.

When the regular preliminary routine work of the meeting had been attended to Manager Heston presented and read the following report in reply to Mr. Burdick's series of questions:

Toledo, O., March 3, 1892.

Any additional information, if desired by the committee, will be cheerfully furnished. Yours respectfully,

WM. P. HESTON, Manager.

The report was adopted and placed on file.

The pay roll, amounting to $2,700, was approved and ordered paid.

Claims amounting to $335 were ordered paid.

Secretary Brown reported $4,600 in the treasury.

Mr. C. E. Lewis appeared before the board and asked why the bill of the Northwestern Gas Co. had not been attended to and paid.

President Parsons said one reason was that the account was in some way tangled up with the pending litigation.

Mr. Lewis said it was very strange that this claim should be set aside.

Mr. Backus thought the bill should be paid.

Manager Heston replied that the earlier bills had been paid, but that quite a number of claims had been held over on account of the litigation.

Dr. Jones said that the bill was one of those that would be paid when the proposed bonds were issued.

Mr. Lewis said he did not know what the suit had to do with the bill.

Mr. Parsons asked if one of the directors of the Northwestern was not a party to the suit against the city.

Mr. Lewis said no, not to his knowledge.

President Parsons replied that Mr. J. S. Rodgers was one of the complainants.

Gen. Greene said the board had not made flesh of one and fish of another. Several other similar bills were held over in the same way.

Mr. Lewis said he did not come there to make any threats. Supposing the court decided adversely on the suit, what then?

Gen. Greene said it would become a city debt.

Dr. Jones said the claim was good, and if suit was brought it would be recognized as such.

Mr. Lewis said if the board suggested a suit as the proper mode of procedure his company would be glad to adopt it.

Dr. Jones said he did not suggest a suit, but rather advised against it. On motion of Mr. Voit the matter was referred to the city solicitor.

The matter of tips came up again and Manager Heston made a report on the cases wherein parties were accused of using gas free and the report was adopted.

Superintendent O'Herron reported that the following number of mixers had been bored out:

No. 9.....	514
No. 7.....	3,041
No. 5.....	917
Total.....	4,472

He did not believe that much gas had been wasted, owing to the extremely low pressure.

The Toledo Foundry and Machine company, Mr. O'Herron said, had offered to pack and redrill all the mixers at a rate of $30 a thousand. The matter was referred.

Mr. Voit was, on motion of Dr. Jones, placed on the various standing committees made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Clarence Brown.

Secretary Brown reported that the receipts for gas from March 1 to March 7 was $3,955.

Mr. Greene, in reply to a question, said he was not yet ready to make a report on the result of his gas pump visit to Pittsburg.

President Parsons' annual report, it was said, would probably be reported at the next meeting.

NO MORE ENGINE HOUSES

The Aldermen Careful of the City Dollars.

Legislation Started for a Wheel Tax.

The Annexation Ordinance Goes Through—Fire Limits Made Larger—General Municipal Affairs.

All members were present at the meeting of the board of aldermen last evening and a large amount of important business was transacted with but little discussion.

The proposition to issue bonds for the fire department was voted down, the annexation ordinance was passed and legislation was started for levying a wheel tax.

Under the call for new business Mr. Peiter presented a resolution requesting the legislature to create the office of building inspector for Toledo. This was referred to the committee on ways and means.

Mr. Everett introduced a resolution to allow property owners on Corbusier and Carlton avenues to grade these streets from Virginia to Bancroft. Referred to the street committee.

From the street committee an ordinance was passed to turnpike Lee street from Walbridge avenue to Sumner street.

Resolutions were adopted to pave Fulton street with asphalt and to widen and open Islington street.

A number of abatements and claims approved by the judiciary committee were allowed, and several resolutions for new sidewalks were adopted.

An ordinance was passed accepting the plat of Daly & Losee's Central View addition.

Mr. Potter, on leave, introduced a resolution requesting the legislature to pass a bill to allow Toledo to levy an animal and wheel tax, the proceeds to be applied to the improvement of streets.

Mr. Hartford presented resolutions for new sewers in the alley between East Broadway and Platt street, from Nevada street to Woodville and in East Broadway from Nevada street to a point 120 feet south of Starr avenue. Both of these resolutions were referred to the sewer committee.

Fire Bonds.

Mr. Macomber presented the resolution requesting the legislature to pass an enabling act to allow Toledo to issue bonds to the amount of $100,000 for the purpose of building and equipping additional fire engine houses.

Mr. Everett in once opposed this measure on the ground that the city had already issued bonds enough. "Every board in the city," said he, wants to issue bonds to raise more money and I think a stop should be put to it. The present department is enough and the city does not need any more fire protection than it did a few years ago.

"As for placing an engine house near the wagon works, it will be time enough for that when Auburndale is annexed to the city."

Mr. Hartford did not agree with Mr. Everett and spoke in favor of the resolution. "We do need more and better fire protection," said he, "especially in Southeast Toledo. There has never been a fire in that part of the city that has not burned itself out.

"We never see a fire engine up that way until the building is burned down and then the apparatus can only play on the smoldering embers.

"The situation is the same in other outskirts of the city."

The resolution was lost by a vote of 7 to 2. Messrs. Hartford and Graham being the only ones to vote for it.

Later in the evening Mr. Macomber moved to reconsider the vote on this question and when that was done he suggested that bonds might be issued for $25,000 in order to help the department.

Mr. Everett also opposed this.

Mr. Hartford moved to amend by making the issue $50,000.

There was a brief discussion, but when the latter came to a vote Mr. Hartford's amendment was lost by a vote of 6 to 3 and the $25,000 proposition was also lost by a vote of 7 to 2.

From the Health Department.

A communication was read from the police and health board, calling the attention of the council to the bad condition of Utah street, East Side, and requesting that the street be drained and filled. Referred to the committee on health.

Might Start a Bank.

A communication was read from Mayor Emmick asking that the council pass an ordinance to provide for the destruction of gambling outfits by the police. They have on hand several such outfits and want authority to destroy them. Such an ordinance was introduced in the council last spring, but was never acted upon. This was referred to the committee on rules, by-laws and ordinances.

The ordinance fixing the fire limits came up from the other board for concurrence in an amendment. It was further amended on the East Side and then passed.

Annexation.

The annexation ordinance and all other business from the board of councilmen was passed.

To Dredge the River.

Mr. Huberich presented a resolution providing for dredging the channel in the river from the mouth of Swan creek at Monroe street to Adams street. This was referred to the committee on harbor and commerce and the board adjourned.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S . PROVERBIAL . PHILOSOPHY . . .

Coming events cast their shadows before.

The feeling of utter listlessness, lack of energy, desire to be alone, or the "don't care" feeling, are all shadows of coming events. No woman should permit those symptoms to gain ground, for, being forewarned, she should be forearmed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will disperse all those shadows. It goes to the very root of all female complaints, renews the waning vitality, and invigorates the entire system. Surely such letters as this will support our claims:

DEAR MADAM. — . . . I think your Vegetable Compound saved my life; it is the best medicine for kidney and female troubles I ever saw. I induced my friends to use it, and it has never failed. — Mrs. H. E. FOSKETT, West Rutland, Vt.

"WHAT SHALL IT BE?"

Henceforth in this beautiful land of ours,
One flower is to be the flower of flowers—
Our national emblem, our symbol of might,
Of patriotism, of truth and right.
Of our floral beauties for sea to sea,
Countless and curious, "Which shall it be?"
Shall it be the Lily so pure and fair?
Fit emblem alike for bridal or bier;
Or the queenly Rose? white, pink or red—
A coronet for a queenly head—
Or bright-eyed Pansy? Heart's-ease if you will,
So touchingly tender, so thoughtfully still—
Or the Daisy? where meadow grasses wave
In rocky nook, or by poet's grave—
Or trailing Arbutus? daintily sweet,
In mossy bed at the tall pine's feet—
The first sweet harbinger of spring,
Faint tinged with the red of the robin's wing;
Though full of ignorance, yet lacking power,
Too dainty—too scarce for the national flower,
Or Morning Glory? of varied hue,
From the whitest white to the bluest blue—
Or brilliant Poppy, with tasseled head
Of golden glory or richest red,
Or the Passion Flower, tinged to its petal tips
With the brilliant beautiful Orchis rare,
Oft twined in the Gypsy maiden's hair,
The Snow Ball, Peony, Trumpet Flower,
Of primitive Puritan pride and power,
Or stately Sunflower, with gold-flecked disk
And golden rays which a world might risk,
Into every heart it hath found its way
And bears the likeness upon its face
For its loyalty to the god of day,
Of the god it turns to with modest grace,
The floral symbol of life and light,
Like the sun by day, like the stars by night.
What is liberty but the light of truth?
What is life but love's fount of eternal youth?
What more beautiful thought could one flower hold
Than this gold-eyed gem in its setting of gold?
Proudly the floral world might yield
To have it emblazoned on flag and shield;
But a floral rival, nor friend nor foe,
In like gold-wrought uniform all aglow,
Has leaped to the front with a strong swift bound,
And with pride is holding the vantage ground,
As though let slip from the hand of God
And christened in falling "the Golden Rod."
Tall and graceful its golden plumes
Wayside forest and field illumes,
And it gaily nods to each passer-by,
Whether man of wisdom or maiden shy—
The youthful, the aged, the great, the small,
It has a bow and a smile for all—
Truly American, wonderful flower,
With the candidate's politic, pleasing power.
'Tis the flower of the freedom! for everywhere
It riseth up like the voice of prayer—
Springing spontaneous from the soil,
With never a mark of mire or moil.
Wheresoever the foot of man hath trod
He hath measured all things with a Golden Rod.
'Tis the magic staff that lets him in
To the homes of virtue, the haunts of sin—
The wand that heals like an angel's wing
The heart of peasant, priest, poet, king—
Dame Nature, ever true to her law
Of correspondence, its beauty saw,
And scattered it broadcast over the earth
To symbolize true wealth, true worth.
It is destined the flower of flowers to be
In "the land of the brave, the home of the free!"

The human frame is an excellent magnet. A man will carry a watch for years and be proud of its accuracy; then he will fall sick, the watch will lie on the mantel or on the dresser, and will develop great inaccuracy and irregularity. No explanation is forthcoming except the one that the absence of magnetism upsets the time announcer, and the best proof of this is that when the man gets round again and carries his watch it soon goes all right.

A Chance for a Big Fight to Take Place.

Olympic Club Offers Twenty-Five Thousand

Sullivan Enjoys Himself at Mitchell's Expense—New Rules in Horse Racing—General Sporting Notes.

Pugilistic circles are just now excited over the possibility of a match between some of the big fighters. The Olympic club, of New Orleans, has prepared articles of agreement for a contest between Sullivan and Mitchell or any of the men who claim to be so anxious to meet the Boston boy. The Olympic will give $25,000 to the winner.

Dispatches to the Bee from Minneapolis quote Sullivan as follows:

"I will fight Mitchell any time between August 15 and September 7, this year, at the Olympic club in New Orleans for the purse of $20,000 and a side bet of $10,000. I am ready to post my forfeit now or the entire sum of $10,000 just as Mitchell desires. If he is in such a financial condition that he cannot post the whole amount, I will accept first deposit of $2,500 now, the second in 30 days, the third by May 1 and the fourth by June 1.

"I will accept any reputable man as stakeholder and insist on the match coming off between the dates mentioned, this gives Mitchell six months to train and as my contracts do not expire until June, I have but three months. I cannot extend the time limit beyond September 7.

"As regards the statements of Mitchell that all I have to do is to sign the articles that the Olympic club forward me, if I mean business, I can only say that I knew nothing about the said articles. I have not seen them so I do not know what they contain. When were they prepared, and by whom, and why is Mitchell so conversant with them? There is too much at stake for me to give my acquiescence to sign articles of which I know nothing.

"This fight must not only be for a large purse and an outside bet, but also for a title which I have held in America for 11 years and do not propose to jeopardize. I will sign any fair articles or agree to Mitchell's sending representatives to meet my representatives in drawing up a set of articles.

"I will agree upon any reputable stakeholder, any reputable referee, and am prepared to make any ordinary and fair concessions to have the man meet me. I insist only upon the time of the fight between August 15 and September 12, the amount of the purse offered $25,000, Marquis of Queensbury rules to govern, this to prevent foot racing.

"The smaller the ring the better I will be pleased. I limit its size to 24 feet and hope it will be 12.

"As regards Mitchell's statement that he stood me off twice, it is a deliberate falsehood. I had him almost finished when Capt. Williams stopped the contest at Madison Square Garden, and said, 'Stop, John, do you want to kill him?'

"When he met at Chantilly, France, he fooled me nine times, spiked me five times and refused to fight. The records prove this. The last round lasted thirty minutes, during which I chased him five times around the ring. The rain was pouring in torrents and the mud was a foot deep.

"In regard to weight, a heavy weight is heavy weight, I weigh 236 now and I am told Mitchell weighs 210. I will weigh about 203 to 207 pounds in condition and Mitchell between 195 and 201. That is hardly 40 pounds difference between us, is it? It's a wonder to me this 210 pound baby is allowed to go around without a nurse."

Drivers are making all manner of fun about the new rule just adopted by the National Trotting association, which allows a driver to lay up one heat provided he notifies the judges of his intentions. This rule is, in our opinion, a very foolish one; not one driver out of one hundred will pay the least attention to it. The idea of a driver telling the judges that he is going to lay by a heat is absurd. The safest and surest way to check the laying up of heats is to abolish forever heat betting. This is one of the greatest evils of the trotting turf. Heat betting and the laying up of heats go hand in hand. Without the former you will find very little of the latter. The doing away with heat betting would tend to make races much more popular.—Spirit of the Hub.

Sporting Notes.

Everything is progressing handsomely in Western league affairs.

With two-minute car service to the ball park the attendance should be large.

A sister of Direct (2:06) has been bred to Stamboul (2:11).

The road-pacer B. B., that created a sensation in 1890 by lapping Hal Pointer out a mile in 2:09 3-4, has been bought by a Boston horseman, and hereafter will be used wholly as a driving horse.

Fred Smith is not anxious to play ball this summer, and the only club he would consent to join would be Toledo.

The warm sun of Tuesday had its effect on the ball cranks. You could see it in their faces.

Hood's Sarsaparilla absolutely cures where other preparations fail. It possesses medicinal merit peculiar to itself.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Delightful Performance of Prince and Pauper.

Gus Hill's Novelties at the People's—The Fire Patrol—The Bernhardt Sale.

Little Elsie Leslie and an excellent company presented "The Prince and the Pauper" at Wheeler's opera house Monday evening.

The play is a charming dramatization of Mark Twain's book of the same name and makes a splendid drama with an ingenious plot and strong situations.

Elsie Leslie, in the dual part of Tom Canty, the pauper, and Prince Edward, showed remarkable ability and talent and her work would be creditable to an experienced actress.

The company supporting her was good, including Herbert Archer, as Miles Hendon, F. W. Tibbets, as Earl Hertford, Thomas McCabe, as Lord Seymour, Dora Leslie, as Princess Elizabeth, and Velma Swanston, as Mrs. Canty.

The audience last evening was small, though the play deserved much better. The performance will be repeated this evening.

Gus Hill.

Gus Hill's World of Novelties presented a splendid vaudeville performance at the People's Monday evening to an audience that filled every seat in the theater. Their program is full of good things, and with a few exceptions the people are stars in their parts.

The company includes Fred J. Huber and Kitty Allyne in clever songs and burlesque; Estelle Wellington in songs and national dances which show this young lady to be very nimble and versatile; Gus Hill in his champion club swinging act; Al Reeves, in negro specialty; Marion and Keen in a rather painful endeavor to be swells and sing songs; Mason and Ralston in a very funny character sketch; Maude Beverly in several vocal selections; Fields and Schann in an excellent musical comedy and an acrobatic performance by the Judges, the whole concluding with a roaring farce entitled Push and Pull.

The combination will play at the People's all this week.

The Fire Patrol.

At the People's all next week "The Fire Patrol," a new melodrama, will be presented. It was written by the author of the "Midnight Alarm." "The Fire Patrol" was produced in New York city lately and was warmly received.

It serves to introduce a fire patrol wagon and a scene showing the interior of a gold stamp mill in the Black Hills where the ore is crushed as it comes from the mines.

Speaking of this scene the New York Evening Telegram said: "The Homestake stamp mill with the ponderous ore crushers in full operation and a fully-equipped fire patrol wagon set the audience wild with delight. There has been nothing produced in years more realistic and dramatically thrilling than the 'Fire Patrol.' It is a decided hit." Lovers of that kind of plays will be fully supplied with realism and will turn out in force.

Bernhardt.

The sale of seats for the Bernhardt performance next Friday has opened at Holmes' drug store with a rush and the sale was very large, showing that the audience will be one of the largest and most fashionable of the season.

A TRAGEDY IN OUTLINE.

He was a copyholder in the proof-room of a daily paper—a quiet, reserved man, of whom little was known except that he was always on hand and attended closely to his business.

When he came to the list of the killed and injured in the report of the accident he suddenly stopped and for a moment seemed unable to speak. Then he recovered his self-possession and read the list.

"That last name is spelled wrong," he said quietly when he had finished it.

"That young woman's name?" asked the man who had the proof.

"Yes," he replied. "It's according to the copy, but—" He reached over and crossed out a letter. "Now, it's all right," he said.

"You seem to know a good deal—" began the proofreader.

"Let's finish this," said the other, "But—why, man, you're sick," exclaimed the proofreader, as he looked up. "You're as white as a—"

"A little faint," was the reply, "but I can finish this galley, anyway."

He finished it, and then without a word went for his coat.

"I can't finish the night," he said. "I'll try to get around to-morrow, but to-night—"

"Look here! Where are you going?" asked the proofreader.

"Home," he replied, "and if there's a train in the morning I may go to ——. I didn't know she was coming on that train until I saw—" He stopped, and then as he opened the door he went on: "She wrote that she would be here to-morrow or next day, and then we were to be—"

The door closed behind him. He was back two days later, and he did his work in the same methodical, quiet way; but his story—no one ever asked him for the details, and he never volunteered them.—Chicago Tribune.

IN PAPER COVERS.

Books New and Old, Foreign and the Home Product.

Plenty of Good Things in the March Magazines — Notes and Opinions, Original and Selected.

Fred'k Marshall, author of Claire Brandon, and French Home Life, is given number 88 in Appleton's Town and Country library for his new book, "It Happened Yesterday." The story opens somewhat pathetically, in Augsburg, Germany, and changes scene to Paris, growing in interest and fascination to the end. It will be classed with psychological fiction, but is nowhere overborne with the occult influence; 50 cents.

The old-time popular "Aunt Patty's Scrap Bag," by Caroline Lee Hentz, is published by the Petersons (Philadelphia) in their 25-cent series of choice fiction.

The Wild Rose of Gross-Stauffen, is the taking title of a story by Nataly Von Erchstruth, translated by Elsie Lathrop, and published by the Worthington Co. (N. Y.) in their attractive International Series. The readers for this house are happy in their choice of foreign fiction, which is nearly always to be commended. The perfume of flowers pervades this story which is charming in its descriptive passages as well as in its characters and plot; 75 cents.

From the same house in the same handsome form, comes a translation of Hector Malot's "Conscience." The author is one of the leading French fictionists and the story is remarkable for its fine delineation of character and the grace and tenderness of its love scenes. Paper, 75 cents. These books are for sale in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull.

The question "How to Manage a Husband," a collection of over a hundred different plans, is published by J. S. Ogilvie, N. Y. The N. Y. Evening World offered a prize of $20 for the best plan and this is the result. Mme. Lozier, president of Sorosis, was the judge.

With the March number the Forum begins its seventh year. Either the Forum fills a hitherto conspicuous vacancy or has made for itself a large place in the reading world. In the current number Mr. Bland makes his best argument on his pet silver theory and Mr. Leech, director of the mint, furnishes a paper on the other side of the question. The discussion of this question pro and con, will be continued. Pensions, immigration and the tariff will be discussed and the publishers promise that the Forum "will take an active and leading part in the political discussions of the presidential campaign." Essays in educational lines, the arts and sciences, on municipal government, industrial, commercial and religious topics are also promised. To do without the Forum is to miss a great deal.

Rev. M. J. Savage, the eminent Unitarian divine, contributes a paper on "Psychical Research" to the current number of the Arena. Gen. Weaver writes on the "Threefold Contentions of Industry;" Hamlin Garland on the "Farmers' Alliance Wedge in Congress;" Hon. Walter Clark, associate judge of the supreme court of North Carolina in favor of government control of telegraph and telephone; Miss Will Allen Dromgoole contributes a delightful story of East Tennessee and these are a few of the many good things in the number which is rounded out by able editorial articles by Mr. Flower.

Professor Charles Eliot Norton, the literary executor of James Russell Lowell, says of his poem, "On a Bust of General Grant," which appears in the March Scribner: "This poem is the last, so far as is known, written by Mr. Lowell." A fac-simile of one of the stanzas appears with the poem, showing Mr. Lowell's interlineations. "A New England Kitchen," by Mrs. A. M. Earle, the first instalment of Robert Grant's serial, "Reflections of a Married Man," are attractive features of the March issue of this excellent periodical.

Cassell's Family Magazine ($1.50 a year) presents a great variety of topics this month. Fashion letters from London and Paris are a feature; a paper on home decoration contains new and bright ideas.

The Quarterly Register of Current History, published in Detroit, Mich., is a condensed encyclopedia of events just transpired, and one of the most valuable periodicals of the times. In a little more than a year its merits have won for it an international reputation. When such a publication as this can be had for $1 a year, there is small excuse for any person who can read, not to keep themselves well-posted on current events.

The current number of the North American Review is quite political in its character, presenting all sides of questions with remarkable fairness. The issues of the coming presidential campaign are forecast by Senator James McMillan of Michigan, Representative Benton McMillin of Tennessee, Senator Frank Hiscock of New York, Representative R. P. Bland of Missouri, Senator Eugene Hale of Maine, Representative W. C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky and W. R. Merriam, governor of Minnesota.

Two opposing views as to the proper expenditure of public moneys are presented by Hon. W. S. Holman, chairman of the committee on appropriations and ex-Speaker T. B. Reed. Congressman Springer discusses the proposed international monetary conference and Mr. Eleroy Curtis the Chilean affair. Mr. Gladstone's second paper on the Olympian religion and Director General Davis on the World's Fair up to date are other notable contributions.

Outing finds everything breezy and inspiring for its columns in spite of the horrible weather. There are spots here and there where "the weather" is not, and these are pictured for us. We are taken to the mid-Pacific, to Southern California, to Ceylon, to Canada for winter sport, and the beautiful illustrations give it all a spirit of reality.

"The Beauty of God's Handiwork" is the opening paper of the current number of the Quiver, the favorite Sunday Magazine published by the Cassells. There are many fine and graphic illustrations.

One of the most entertaining papers in the March Atlantic is Isabel Hapgood's "Harvest Tide on the Volga." Rev. Brooks Herford on "An Old English Township," gives us some delightful chapters. Miss Agnes Repplier discusses children and poetry in connection, Joel Chandler Harris contributes a short story, Edith Thomas a characteristic prose-and-verse paper, and ex-Governor Cox, of Ohio, tells "Why the Men of '61 Fought for the Union." Prof. George Herbert Palmer, of Harvard, expresses "Doubts about University Extension," and Miss Kate Wiggin contributes a clever short story. A thoroughly good number.

A welcome and pleasing contribution to the month's literature is the first paper in the New England Magazine, "Recollections of Louisa May Alcott," by an intimate friend, Mrs. Maria S. Porter. A number of engravings from photographs add to the value of the article. Salem Witchcraft and Negro Camp Melodies add to the variety. Walter Blackburn Harte, "In a Corner at Dodsley's," makes some clever criticisms. He very aptly says, "the amount of twaddle which is sold by the yard by the syndicates seems to be killing all honest endeavor in literature." So say we all of us. Mr. Harte is one of the editors of the "New England."

Literary Notes.

The Union Signal, of Chicago, the organ of the W. C. T. U., has come under a new editorial management, the editorial corps now consisting of Miss Frances Willard, Lady Henry Somerset, Mary Allen West, Margaret A. Sudduth, and Mrs. H. B. Kells. This paper has become a literary power, as well as a great force in the work of reform.

Miss Mary Hawker, the author of "Mademoiselle Ixe," is studying the life of the very low poor. She has become interested by her own writings and desires to know more of the topics of which she treats.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Melville, widow of Herman Melville, has placed the publication of her husband's writings with the United States Book company, who will issue, from new plates, an edition of "Melville's Works," edited by Mr. Arthur Stedman.

J. M. Barrie grows in popular favor with every new work from his pen. His "Little Minister" is winning for him the prophetic title of "the Dickens of Scotland." The United States Book Co., N. Y., are his publishers in this country.

Houghton & Mifflin issue a 25-cent edition of Uncle Tom's Cabin. Advance orders warranted them in making the first issue 160,000 copies.

The latest volume in the series of American Men of Letters, published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., will be devoted to William Gilmore Simms, the distinguished southern novelist. It is written by Professor Wm. P. Trent, of the University of the South.

An American critic says that Mrs. Ward's "David Grieve" is not to be mentioned, for merit, with the recent novel by Thomas Hardy, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." The Pall Mall Gazette says, "It is the strongest English novel of many years."

Berwick & Smith, Boston, will publish the new edition of Mrs. Ward's "David Grieve."

Prof. Chas. F. Richardson's "Choice of Books," in neat, stiff covers, printed by John B. Alden, N. Y. Price 30 cents.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly has a gay and rather flash frontispiece in colors and furnishes an excellent collection and variety of reading matter.

Peterson for March comes brightly in with the first hint of spring, its delights and gaities, its fashions and novelties. "News from Other Worlds," by the celebrated French astronomer, Camille Flammarion, is a feature of the number. It is unusually brilliant with fashion plates, notes, stories, verse and department contributions.

An important series of articles on "The Great Capitals of the World" is begun in the current number of Harper's Weekly. The first instalment is a paper on Paris, by Francois Coppee, describing the home life of the Parisians, the sights and sounds and suggestive features of the French capital, familiar enough to its inhabitants, but full of romantic interest to strangers. The paper is profusely illustrated from drawings by famous French artists.

Harper & Bros. announce the following new books: In the Vestibule Limited, by Brander Matthews; That Angelic Woman, by J. M. Ludlow; Rowena in Boston, by Maria Louise Pool; Lord Palmerston, by the Marquis of Lorne; Selections from Lucian, translated by Emily James Smith.

The American Academy of Political and Social Science (Philadelphia), has recently published a pamphlet by Prof. Eleanor L. Lord, of Smith College, on "International Arbitration." Since 1794, over seventy-five disputes have been settled by this means. The most noteworthy of these was the "Alabama" case. The greatest obstacle to the adoption of arbitration has been the indecision of its advocates as to what was the best method of conducting cases. Miss Lord favors the formation of an international court, to which all international disputes would be submitted.

Messrs. D. Appleton & Co. announce the third volume of Prof. J. B. McMaster's History of the People of the United States.

Next to the "Merrily Yours, Marshall P. Wilder," syndicate column, the "Literary Leaves" of Edward W. Bok are the worst sozzle on the market.

A revised edition of Herbert Spencer's Social Statistics, the book which has created such a stir among social reformers, will be issued shortly by D. Appleton & Co., simultaneously with its publication in England.

Mme. Humphrey Ward is a niece of Matthew Arnold, and a granddaughter of the Dr. Arnold, of Rugby fame. She is married to the chief art critic of the London Times.

Mr. R. H. Stoddard says the "utile" (useful) is crushing the literary life out of our periodicals.

"Immortal Hopes" is the name of a beautiful little collection of Easter poems with illustrations, nearly ready by D. Lothrop company, Boston.

The early career of Robert Louis Stevenson was a disappointment to his family, who expected that the great talent he displayed in his youth would win him distinction in the law, for which he was trained. When, after his university course, he developed a vein of bohemianism and a fondness for literature, it was a blow to his straight-laced Presbyterian father, whose ideas of authors were fashioned from the old Grub Street type. Mr. Stevenson's unconventionality of life gave pain to his mother, but the fame that marked him in later years has reconciled her to the eccentricities of his genius, and she lives now with him in his Samoan retreat, wearing her prim black silk dress and widows cap through all the torrid days of the South Sea climate.

The poet Riley, in his younger days, had established a local reputation as a very clever amateur actor.

Jules Verne writes his extraordinary stories in a study perched at the top of the tower of his Amiens house. The room is crowded with charts, electrical apparatus, and the various scientific instruments with which the author surrounds himself when he is elaborating the imaginary adventures of his heroes, for even in his most daring flights of fancy he keeps as near as he can to the line of scientific possibility.

It will be forty years this march since the first edition of Mrs. Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin was given to the public. More truly than of Byron, it may be said of Mrs. Stowe that she awoke to find herself famous, and though her book has passed its period of greatest popularity, it still finds a ready sale, and brings its aged author a very comfortable income. Probably no other book except the Bible, certainly no other work of an American writer, has been so frequently translated into foreign languages.

Both the state and the church in Turkey combine to make a bachelor's life miserable. As long as a man's parents are living he can live with them without experiencing any difficulty. But as soon as they die he must obtain permission from both civil and religious authorities before he can be admitted to any other household; and, moreover, it is the duty of the proprietor of the household he enters to see that males and not females wait upon him.

WHY SHE LEFT THE FLAT.

She Could Submit to Snubs, but "Neighboring" Was Too Much for Her.

They were coming down together in a Broadway car and the woman in the plush jacket was pouring her tale of woe into the sympathetic left ear of her neighbor in the sealskin coat.

"Yes, I've moved," she said. "We've given up flat life and are going to live in a hotel for a while. No, it wasn't the traditional causes that drove me out, either. I'd grown used to the dumb-waiter, had established fairly friendly relations with the janitor and my servant agreed beautifully with the other servant, who washed on the same day she did.

"We had lived in the flat almost six months. No one had called, and I, being used to the ways of smaller cities, had decided that the people meant to snub me. I didn't mind it. Harry and I were very comfortable. I had mother with me part of the time, and—well, everything was lovely.

"One evening about two weeks ago I was in the bathroom, which opened off the court. I had a severe cold in my lungs, and I confided the fact to Harry, who sat in our 'den,' further down the hall. I suppose that I must have raised my voice just a little, when Harry suggested that I use goose-grease and I replied that I hadn't any in the house.

"Well, my dear, in just ten minutes the bell rang and my maid came to me with a saucer and a message from the old lady who lived in the flat above me. The saucer contained goose-grease and the message was to the effect that the dear old lady had heard me express a wish, etc., and begged I would accept it.

"I was pleased. It was so sweet and nice of her that tears came to my eyes as I took the saucer and retreated into the bathroom again. The door had hardly closed when—another ring, another maid, another saucer, this time from the young married woman on the top floor.

"How ungrateful I have been! How kind and truly good were all these people! My meditations were interrupted by another rin, another maid, another supply of the goose-grease. The maiden lady who kept house for her brother had sent it up, and would I please rub it in well and go to bed at once. Then the Irish servant girl across the hall brought some in and gave it to the queen of my kitchen, and I had to take in and shelter two more consignments while they were exchanging the courtesies of the evening.

"All were represented before the evening was over, except that the offerings varied. The widower on the first floor said his Maria had died of a neglected cold on the lungs, and he sent me a bottle of the Consumptive Sufferer's Relief, which she had found very soothing in her last hours. A sweet old grandmother on the second floor sent me a mustard plaster all ready for application, and the widow who boards with her contributed a box of 4-grain quinine pills and a medical journal.

"Martha and I spent the entire evening receiving these neighborly offerings, while Harry sat still and chuckled. By 11 o'clock we had ample stock for a small apothecary shop.

"From that night everybody in the block regarded me as a being snatched from death by his or her remedy. I gave them all a common interest to discuss. Harry was waylaid in the hall, Martha was intercepted on her way to and from the clothes line. I myself was subjected to various medical questions by the widower, the grandmother and the young married woman on the top floor.

"I was growing thin and pale. I simply had to have a change of scene—and people! So we moved. No, I'm not exaggerating. I haven't even done the subject justice."

But the woman in the sealskin coat thought she had.—New York World.

Nervous and Sick Headache.

How to Perfectly Cure Them.

All forms of headache are of a nervous character, and are caused by a weakness, irritation or disease of nerves of the head, or to the disorders of the system from Spring Debility, malaria, and to cure such cases it is absolutely necessary to use Dr. Greene's Nervura. The Grip also, which has been so prevalent, causes more headache and leaves the nerves of the head in a more weakened and diseased condition than any other known affection. This condition should never be neglected. Many persons who suffer from headache have, by repeated failures to find relief, despaired of cure. To such we would say, by all means secure a bottle of this wonderful remedy, and watch its marvelous effects. It is the most perfect cure known for headache. Purely vegetable and harmless. Druggists, $1.

"For over twenty years my life was made miserable by frequent and terrible headaches. AT TIMES THEY WERE SO SEVERE I FEARED I WOULD GO INSANE.

"Oh! My Head is Splitting!"

No one could suffer worse than I did. I bought Dr. Greene's Nervura, and the very first bottle stopped the headaches, AND I NEVER HAD ANY TROUBLE WITH MY HEAD SINCE THAT TIME. After suffering for twenty years I WAS CURED BY DR. GREENE'S NERVURA.

IMPORTANT DECISION

Affecting Theaters, Railroad Companies, Etc.

Special Master Belford Returns From Cleveland, Where He Has Been Taking Evidence in the Gas Case.

United States Clerk Irving Belford has returned from Cleveland, where he has been acting as special master in the hearing of the illuminating gas case which is on trial in that city.

"A very important decision was given by the court Saturday," said Mr. Belford to a Bee this morning. "A lady who got crushed and internally injured in a jam at a railroad depot during a celebration in a Pennsylvania town brought suit for damages.

"After a long and hotly-contested trial she was given $5,000 damages. This establishes a precedent that affects every institution where a jam or crush is likely to occur.

"It is the first of the kind ever established and it is therefore important to managers of theaters, owners of halls, etc."

"What is the result in the gas case?"

"None yet. No evidence has so far been introduced that tends to show illuminating gas can profitably be sold at the established rate—60 cents."

"What do you consider a fair rate?"

"Well, 90 cents, but the city has still to produce its experts and they may throw some light on the subject."

Col. Thomas, a New York expert and gas manufacturer, during his examination, was asked:

"Assuming that the company puts out 600,000,000 cubic feet of gas a year, and that it costs them 40 cents a thousand, what do you say would be required, what sum per 1,000 feet, to enable the company to derive a fair profit?"

"About 30 cents."

"That would be about 10 per cent?"

"It would depend upon other expenses."

RECEIVED THEIR DOSE.

Judge Lemmon Passes Sentence on Prisoners.

Allen Arnt, Alias Green, Receives Five Years—The Polish Criminal Assault Case Nolled.

The cases remaining on the criminal docket have been disposed of in common pleas court without trial as follows:

Allen Arnt, alias Green, tried and convicted on the charge of burglary and larceny, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Robert Downey and David O'Hern, charged with burglary and larceny, plead guilty, and were sentenced to one year each in the penitentiary.

George Peterson plead guilty to the charge of burglary and larceny, and was sent up for two years.

The indictment charging Robert Slupinski with criminal assault, was nolled. Counsel for the defense noted an exception, and it is evident that there is more to follow in this case.

This about cleans up the criminal docket and Judge Lemmon will hear civil cases during the balance of the term.

ADJUDGED INSANE,

The Sad Case of George F. Ellas, Salesman for E. C. Shaw & Co.

Probate Judge Millard this morning forwarded the medical certificate and copies of the inquest ,to the insane asylum, giving evidence that George F. Ellas, is insane.

Mr. Ellas is well known in Toledo, and has been connected with the firm of E. C. Shaw & Co. for a long time as traveling salesman, and his case is peculiarly sad.

About two weeks ago was the first note made of Mr. Ellas' queer actions, but yesterday his insanity took a demonstrative turn.

He imagines that he is building a house, and talks incessantly of the negotiation. He appears to be in a very nervous state, and it is very probable that the malady originated from this cause.

The examining physician is of the opinion that the attack is but temporary, and a few weeks' quietude will restore reason.

In the meantime Mr. Ellas is confined at the county jail until he can be removed to the asylum.

FACTS ABOUT OUR RAILROADS.

To gather the statistics from the great corporations which operate the American railways is not a simple work of a day or so, but takes time. It is only just now that we know, from the government reports, what the railway business amounted to for the year ending June 30, 1890, 18 months ago. The mileage at that time was 163,597, an increase during the year of 5,838 miles. This increase, it is of interest to note, was greatest in that group of states formed by Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida, where were built during the year 1,370 miles, or 23 per cent of the whole increase. In the state of Georgia the increase was 438 miles, and this was more than in any other state in the union.

These roads are owned and operated by 1,797 companies, but about one-half of the mileage is operated by 40 companies. The gross revenue of these roads for the year mentioned was $1,051,877,632, but 80 per cent. of this revenue was divided among 75 roads. Large roads must do cheaper work than small ones, as these 75 roads carried 83 1-2 per cent. of the passengers and 85 1-3 per cent. of the freight. To operate the railways requires the services of 749,301 men. This was an increase of 44,558 men over the previous year, and added an average of 20 men to the operating force on every 100 miles of road in the country.

In arriving at the capitalization of these great properties accurate statistics have been obtained on only 156,404 miles. The capitalization for this mileage is $9,437,353,372, or $60,340 per mile. At the same rate the capitalization of all the mileage would bring the total up to about ten thousand millions. This is certainly a great amount of money, but dividends were not paid during the year on 63.76 per cent of the capital stock. The surplus from operating these roads was $12,070,383, a decrease of $7,387,155 from that of the year before. The passengers carried were 492,430,865, an increase of 20,259,522, and the average journey of each passenger was 24.06 miles.—Harper's Weekly.

The imports into the United Kingdom for the week were 1,352,000 bu of wheat and 206,000 bbls of flour, equal to 2,279,000 bp of wheat, or about 1,000,000 bu less than average. The imports of corn were 1,128,000 bu.

The quantity of flour and wheat on ocean passage increased last week 1,464,600 bu, being an increase to the United Kingdom of 1,008,000 bu, and an increase to the continent of 456,000 bu. Corn decreased 1,460,000 bu.

The Kansas City Grain Trade News of March 3, says: February has been a favorable month for the wheat crop in that state, and that it has made positive progress.

The Visible Supply.—Our statement yesterday read decrease on wheat and corn, when it should have read increase.

Minneapolis and Duluth receipts of wheat to-day are 324,330 bu., and at five other points 221,412 bu. The export clearances yesterday were, wheat, 203,394 bu. and flour to an aggregate of 800,000 bu. Export of corn, 213,557 bu., and of oats 10,213 bu. English markets as reported herein are dull and lower for wheat and steady for corn.

Foreign Requirements of Wheat.

In January the Liverpool Corn Trade News estimated the requirements of England and the continent, above home supplies, as 7,000,000 bu. of wheat per week. In February the estimate was increased to 7,680,000 bu., and now it is again reduced to 7,000,000 bu. The difference in these estimates of 680,000 bu per week, for 52 weeks, is 35,360,000 bu., and it is quite an important item.

The importations of flour and wheat into the United Kingdom in the week are in flour and wheat equal to about 1,000,000 bu. of wheat less than average, and the quantity on passage is 1,464,000 bu. increased. Corn shows the large decrease on passage of 1,400,000 bu. The increase in the visible wheat and on passage is 1,900,000 bu. With a weekly increase on ocean passage, the statement made herein, that the receipts abroad are 1,500,000 bu. less than the estimated consumption. If any one asks an explanation, "We give it up."

The weather continues faultless for the growth of wheat. It is raining again today and last night. A cold snap after so much rain would make the shorts in wheat shiver.

A private cable to Chicago renews the report of crop damage, and is credited, as buying orders came with it.

The Markets To-Day.

WONDERFUL PRESENCE OF MIND.

It was in India. Dinner was just finished in the mess-room, and several English officers were sitting about the table. Their bronzed faces had the set but not unkindly look common among military men. The conversation, at best, had not been animated; and just now there was a lull, as the night was too hot for small talk. The major of the regiment, a cleancut man of 55, turned toward his next neighbor at the table, a young subaltern, who was leaning back in his chair, with his hands clasped behind his head, staring through the cigar smoke at the ceiling.

The major was slowly looking the man over, from his handsome face down, when, with a sudden alertness and steady voice, he said:

"Don't move, please, Mr. Carruthers. I want to try an experiment with you. Don't move a muscle."

"All right, Major," replied the subaltern, without even turning his eyes. "I hadn't the least idea of moving, I assure you. What's the game?"

By this time all the others were listening in a lazy, expectant way.

"Do you think," continued the major, and his voice just trembled a little, "do you think you can keep absolutely still for, say, two minutes—to save your life?"

"Are you joking?"

"On the contrary, move a muscle and you are a dead man. Can you stand the strain?"

The subaltern barely whispered, "Yes," and his face paled slightly.

"Burke," said the major, addressing an officer across the table, "pour some of that milk in a saucer, and set it on the floor back of me. Gently, man! Quick!"

Not a word was spoken as the officer quickly filled the saucer, walked with it carefully around the table, and put it down where the major had indicated on the floor.

Like a marble statue sat the young subaltern in his white linen clothes, while a cobra de capella, which had been crawling up the leg of his trousers, slowly raised his head, then turned, descended to the floor and glided toward the milk.

Suddenly the silence was broken by the report of the major's revolver, and the snake lay dead on the floor.

"Thank you, Major," said the subaltern, as the two men shook hands warmly. "You have saved my life."

"You're welcome, my boy," replied the senior, "but you did your share."—Youth's Companion.

That growth of luxuriant curly hair you saw was probably secured by using Natural White Oil. All druggists, 50c.

Telegraph wires in Syria work very irregularly, and it is said to be no unusual thing to send telegrams from Beyrout to Port Said by steamer.

PRESIDENT.

How They Differ.

In make up: Most baking powders contain ammonia or alum. Cleveland's does not; not a particle.

It is made of pure cream of tartar and bi-carbonate of soda, with a little flour to keep the strength, nothing else. Cleveland's is wholesome.

In strength: A rounded spoonful of Cleveland's does better work than a heaping spoonful of any other.

A large saving on a year's bakings. Cleveland's leavens most.

In results: Cake made with Cleveland's is fine grained, keeps moist and fresh.

Cleveland's leavens best.

WHAT CHICAGO DRINKS.

The typhoid epidemic in Chicago is beginning to be serious. The total of deaths for 1891 in that city due to typhoid fever is nearly twice that of 1890, and investigating into the causes of the increase of typhoid fever it is found that it is due chiefly to the increasing defilement of the waters of the lake from which Chicago obtains its present drinking water supply. The sewers are constantly sending forth their pollutions into the lake, and there is nothing to prevent their defiling work, and it is impossible to obtain the water supply at a sufficient distance to escape contamination with the sewage. It is reported that typhoid fever cases are rapidly on the increase, and that the city authorities are utterly at a loss to decide what to do. In view of the approaching fair, the unsanitary condition of Chicago from the contamination of its water supply by the sewage is a matter of serious importance, and will demand attention from the whole country. It was a terrible oversight not to anticipate what the result would be if the sewage of this great city were poured into the lake, and its drinking water were obtained from this contaminated source.

A STUDENT OF CRIME.

Inspector Richard Vaux on Criminal Life in a Philadelphia Prison.

"Crime, in my mind," said Mr. Vaux, "is of three kinds—inherited, inherent and from associations. Crime comes by inheritance, just the same as some particular trait attracts attention to a child, and attention is called to it by some one who knew the child's parents or grandparents. It is inherent where the early life has been surrounded by domestic infelicity of the parents."

"Do you think that inherited crime can be cured, considering all crime, as you do, a disease?"

"You can palliate it. When persons are taken to the penitentiary the great thing to discover is what they want. A study is made of their characters, and what they want is given them. Each person is put by himself, and is at once made to take a new view of life. There are two kinds of men who come to you. There is the brute, who goes up to a man and knocks him down, and he is sent out here. Then on the other hand is a man who has received all the benefits of an education, had years of experience among books; held a high place probably. He becomes an embezzler or a forger and comes here to pay the penalty. Would you put that man in with the brute? There is no fraternity between them. They are repulsive to each other. Separate them, treat them as a physician does a patient, and then something will be accomplished."

"Do you know of many instances where men who have been confined in the penitentiary have afterward been cured?"

"Yes, hundreds of them. I go around a great deal and on the street I meet many persons who were formerly confined. Those men know me and invariably speak to me. All of them are doing well.

"We have in the institution now about 1,050 inmates, and by far the greatest number of them have had at least the benefit of a public school education. We have a great many intelligent men in the institution now."—Philadelphia Press.

Photographers the world over have become interested in the discussion of the question, "Why is not a pretty woman pretty in a photograph, and why are pretty children beautiful on the card?" Mr. Rockwood, writing in the Troy (N. Y.) Times, declares that it is because women are self-conscious before the camera, and children are natural.

The Scotch people are wrestling with the same problem of railroad combination as that which disturbs Pennsylvanians. The North British and Caledonian railroads, it seems, have entered into an arrangement providing for a division of competitive traffic and absolute cessation of building or promoting new lines for a period of 25 years. The business men of Glasgow naturally are indignant, but they are preparing to meet the combination in a novel way. They are not wholly dependent upon the roads involved in the combination. The Glasgow and Southwestern, one of the strong local roads, declined to join the deal, thus giving independent access to the coast and to England by means of the Midland road. Now the traders have agreed to boycott all of the English allies of the North British and Caledonian roads, in the belief that the former, in order to protect themselves, will be obliged to declare against the combination. Attempts to coerce railroads and smash deals by boycott are something new, and the result of the experiment will be awaited with interest.
